French Court Believes
Blast of Whistles Was Toxin for Fatal Shooting at Essen.

SERIOUS OUTCOME NOT ANTICIPATED

Witness Declares He Had Not Observed Weapons or Sticks in Possession of Employees.

Werden, Germany, May 4.—Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, head of the great Krupp works at Essen, took the witness stand in his own defense Friday before a French court-martial here.

Krupp, five directors of his company and four members of the workers' council are on trial charged with inciting the riot at the Essen plant in which 14 Germans were killed by French soldiers over a month ago.

As French artillery and soldiers kept away the curious from the large dance hall where the trial is being held, von Bohlen stated he and the directors were discussing financial problems when the crowd gathered outside as a protest against the attempt of French soldiers to confiscate Krupp automobiles from the factory garage.

Admits Agreement.
The witness admitted that he had been agreed upon, in advance, that the siren should be blown if the French ever occupied the plant. "I assumed that there could be no serious outcome of a demonstration," he stated.

Von Bohlen declared that he had not observed the crowd or seen any weapons or sticks in possession of his employees. He stated that he looked out of the window for the first time when a messenger notified him that the French had fired, killing 12 of his workers and mortally wounding the two who died later.

Damaging Testimony.
The damaging testimony that it had been prearranged that the sirens should be blown if the French ever appeared at the plant was considered as damaging testimony by the French, who charge that the blast of the whistles was the signal for the riot.

When the accused men drove up to the hall, those on the outside arose and saluted.

The French court consists of five officers, ranging in rank from a lieutenant to a colonel.

Four German workmen, charged with stealing supplies from the French, are on trial with the Krupp officials and employees.

RUMBOLD AVERTS TOTAL COLLAPSE OF PEACE PARLEY

Lausanne, May 4.—Sir Horace Rumbold, presiding officer of the Near Eastern peace conference in session here, adjourned the meeting Friday to prevent its collapse.

The threatened breakdown of the parley, which is the second held to bring peace in the Near East, was precipitated by Ismet Pasha, the Turkish representative.

Allied representatives had proposed that foreigners in Turkey should not be arrested or detained unless Turkish tribunals first obtained permits from consular attorneys to be appointed later.

Ismet declared that Turkey had yielded the maximum concessions and anything further would be an infringement on her sovereignty.

Joseph Grew, the American observer, attempted to effect a compromise by submitting the problem to a commission of experts, but Ismet angrily refused. It was then that Sir Horace adjourned the session until Monday.

A FRAUD AND MURDER.
SALT LAKE, May 4.—Great excitement has been caused in mining circles by the card of General J. P. Pleading of Wife Wins Cut in Fine For Bead Purloiner

For the theft of a valuable string of beads from a local department store, Robert Jackson, young Atlanta, was fined $25 in the criminal court of Atlanta Friday.

Judge Calhoun at first imposed a fine of $50 on the defendant, but on the urgent appeal of the defendant's young wife the penalty was reduced. It was alleged that Jackson concealed the necklace in the hollow of a toy snowball he had purchased in the store.

TWO BANKS RAIDED IN MISSOURI TOWN BY FIVE BANDITS

Robbers Escape After Simultaneous Holdups.
Bonds and Cash Stolen
Valued at $31,000.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Kansas City, Mo., May 4.—The two banks of Buckner, Mo., about 18 miles from here, were raided by five bandits shortly before noon today.

They escaped in a motor car with about $6,000 in cash and $25,000 in registered Liberty bonds.

The robberies were accomplished simultaneously, the party of five bandits dividing when it entered the town. Two bandits held up the Bank of Buckner and two raided the Farmers Bank, on an opposite corner, while the fifth remained at the wheel of their motor car.

Both robberies were completed about the same time, according to reports received here, and the bandits ran for their car and drove rapidly away, heading toward Independence.

A bus driver and a farmer reported that the bandit car had been seen and apparently was attempting to reach this city by a round about route.

Bank employees and officials of each bank were forced into the vaults by the bandits. Few persons were on the streets of Buckner at the time and they did not realize a robbery was taking place.

Following receipt of the robbery report two automobile loads of deputies and county marshals were dispatched from here to search all roads leading into the city.

Premier Poincare Would Overrule Liquor Decision

Notifies French Ambassador
in Washington to Protest
Liquor Rulings.

Paris, May 4.—Premier Raymond Poincare is going to try to overrule the decision of the United States supreme court which prohibits ships of French and other registries to enter the American three-mile limit with liquor aboard.

Poincare, believing that the liquor ruling of America's highest tribunal is contrary to international law, Friday notified Jules I. Jusserand, French ambassador to Washington, to protest against the decision and to inform the American government that it is impossible for French ships to comply.

Jusserand, it is understood, will inform Secretary of State Hughes that the French laws compel shippers to furnish crews with wine rations.

DISCUSS TURNER PLAN Meeting Will Be Held May 17 in Cedarhurst.

Cedarhurst, Ga., May 4.—(Special.) The Turner county plan will be discussed here May 17, among the speakers will be H. S. Mobley, dairy specialist of the International Harvester company.

Paul Taber, of the State College of Agriculture, will speak on pasturage, giving the farmers a definite schedule of pasturage for each month. J. B. Shields, buyer of the L. W. Rogers Co., and Elmo Ragsdale, poultry specialist of the state bureau of markets, who will show how to grade, sort and pack eggs. Buyers for eggs will be present at this time.

Olson told of building the pier and inspecting it in August, 1921, a month before the class fight. There was no hole in the pier planking at that time, he said.

Washington, May 4.—S. Davies Warfield, president of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities and of the Seaboard Air Line railway, has denied recently in published statements that he was in favor of consolidation of the Seaboard and the Illinois Central, and that he was responsible for the section of the transportation act providing that the railroads of the country be consolidated into a few great systems.

In a statement to The Constitution, Warfield said:

"The record of the interstate commerce commission will show that officials of the Seaboard Air Line railway testified before the commission in the hearings on the proposed consolidation of southeastern railroads that any consolidation of the Seaboard Air Line with the Illinois Central was illegal, was not in the line of economic traffic movement, and that the management of the Seaboard Air Line, as well as the management of the Illinois Central, was opposed to such consolidation. The Seaboard Air Line seeks consolidation with no railroad, it is on a firm foundation and in a better position than it has ever been in my recollection and is able and desires to take care of itself."

Consolidation of Roads.
In respect to the consolidation of all railroads, Warfield said: "Before committees of congress, before the interstate commerce commission and in numerous publications, I have taken the position that consolidation of railroads should be along permissive lines and not along the lines laid down in the transportation act."

"The National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities initiated and laid before congress the fundamental rate-making provision now in effect."

BOY TELLS STORY OF GRUESOME FIND

Efforts to Solve Mystery of Student's Death Concentrated on Jury Investigation.

Chicago, May 14.—Efforts to solve the manner of death in 1921 of Leighton Mount, Northwestern university freshman, who disappeared after a class fight and whose skeleton was found Monday under an Evanston pier in Lake Michigan, today were concentrated in the state attorney's plans for a grand jury investigation to start next Tuesday. The coroner's inquest was indefinitely adjourned today after hearing a few witnesses.

While the second session of the inquest was in progress the state's attorney announced that 25 students will be subpoenaed before the grand jury. Some of them already have been questioned by his assistants.

Thus far, none of the students have thrown any light on the tragedy. A few of them had seen Mount at the gymnasium or on the campus during the continued efforts of the underclassmen to kidnap, duck and otherwise haze their opponents. But none has been found who witnessed the final fatal affair whatever its nature may have been.

Hears Five Witnesses.
The coroner heard only five witnesses, chief among them being O. L. Olson, a contractor, and Henry Warren, 12 years old, who found the skeleton.

Olson told of building the pier and inspecting it in August, 1921, a month before the class fight. There was no hole in the pier planking at that time, he said.

Mr. Coleman stated that he had received the petition requesting a call meeting of the board and that he would talk to the other members and call a meeting as soon as possible.

East Point School Patrons Protest Action by Board

Parent-Teacher Association
Demands Reinstatement of Deposed Principal.

East Point, Ga., May 4.—(Special.)—Failure of the school board to elect Miss Leila Bishop principal of the Harris Street school, has brought a strong protest from the Parent-Teacher association, and other citizens. A petition has been presented H. B. Coleman, chairman of the school board, requesting that a meeting of the board be called for the purpose of reinstating Miss Bishop and an explanation of her deposition.

It is claimed that Miss Bishop has been principal of the Harris Street school and during that time has given entire satisfaction to the patrons. It was made plain that the fight was one solely for the exorcism of Miss Bishop and that no complaint against Mrs. J. R. Campbell, elected as her successor was being lodged.

Mr. Coleman stated that he had received the petition requesting a call meeting of the board and that he would talk to the other members and call a meeting as soon as possible.

DOCTOR HELD UP BY MEN POSING AS PROHIBITION AGENTS

Macon, Ga., May 4.—Two men posing as federal prohibition officers, one armed with a shotgun and the other a revolver, held up Dr. W. C. Pumpelly on a country road near Hawkinsville, Ga., late today, he reported upon arrival here tonight.

Dr. Pumpelly said that he was hurrying home after answering a consultation call to Cochran, Ga., when his car had a slight breakdown. Another car passed him and blocked the road in a secluded spot, he said. He obeyed the command to stop, he said, when the guns were leveled at him.

The men searched the car, but found nothing that they wanted, and the physician was permitted to continue his journey.

Washington, May 4.—(Special.)—The federal reserve board will not postpone its hearing on the proposed Cuban agency for the federal reserve system as requested in several telegrams from the Atlanta federal reserve district, it announced in a telegram sent to the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank Friday night.

In its telegram the board makes assurance that whatever is done will recognize the interest which the Atlanta bank has in the situation, due to the substantial volume of notes it has supplied to Cuba.

The telegram reads: "Board has received a number of telegrams asking postponement of the hearing on proposed Cuban agency scheduled for Monday next. You are advised that the board sees no occasion for postponement of hearing."

Called by Request.
"This hearing was called by the board at the request of certain commercial banks for the purpose of getting further and fuller information with respect to certain questions in connection with proposed agency, more particularly for the purpose of determining whether such an agency might result in unfair competition with member banks dealing in Cuban exchange and in the event that an agency should be authorized that what should be the precise scope of its operations in purchasing, collecting and selling exchange."

DEFEAT OF 1920 FAILS TO DAUNT EX-GOVERNOR COX

Certain Situations May Bring Ohio Man to the Fore Again in Coming Campaign.

BY MARK SULLIVAN
Washington, May 4.—The position of ex-Governor James M. Cox with relation to the democratic situation next year, has emerged to a point where it is possible to speak of it with some definiteness. The first element in that situation is that Cox is not going to be what, for example, Parker was after his disastrous defeat by Roosevelt in 1904. Cox is certainly going to be an active figure next year, and under certain situations may be one of the leading figures. It would be far too much to say that he is now one of the more serious possibilities for the actual nomination. But it would be too much also to say that even in this respect he is absolutely and definitely eclipsed. Omitting the actual nomination in the field of determining who else the nominee shall be, and in determining the party's policies, Cox is clearly disclosed to be much to the front and probably will succeed in being to the front.

Chief Handicap.
Cox's chief handicap is, of course, the obvious one of his severe defeat in 1920. Next to that his principal handicap is his changed relation in his own state of Ohio. In 1920 Cox was in the governor's chair and was without competition as Ohio's favorite son in the democratic convention. But due to events which have occurred since 1920, Cox's hold on the Ohio democratic organization has become much less firm. Some of the Ohio leaders who were Cox's principal friends in 1920, and who were most responsible for getting the nomination for him, do not now occupy the same relation to him. Some of them are out of politics voluntarily, some of them are out involuntarily, and some have transferred their loyalty to others.

Nevertheless, the probability is that Cox will attempt to secure the Ohio delegation of 48 members to the next democratic convention. He may not secure them in the sense of a devoted supporter.

RUM FLEET TURNS TO AIR CHANNELS

Using Big Seaplane to Land Contraband—Coast
Guard Cutter Proves
Too Active.

New York, May 4.—Cut off from surface communication with the Atlantic rum fleet by a concerted drive of prohibition enforcement arms, the liquor running fraternity have turned to air and submarine channels in an effort to get the contraband ashore.

Lieutenant Commander Camden, of the coast guard cutter Seneca, disclosed today when he came in off the rum patrol.

Instead of fleeing this port as had been reported last night, the rum fleet had merely moved little farther south of Sandy Hook, and taken up more open formation, and late last night and early this morning, efforts to get their cargoes ashore were redoubled.

Located Yacht.
The Seneca had just located the British yacht Istar off Jones Inlet, Commander Camden said, when a big gray seaplane swooped down beside the rum runner and two of the fliers clambered aboard. The Seneca put on full speed toward the seaplane, but before she arrived a smaller plane which had been circling high overhead, swooped down signaling the other. The gray plane's occupants tumbled back aboard and took to the air before the Seneca arrived.

A short time later the Seneca sighted two boats, ostensibly lobster fishermen, alongside another unit of the rum fleet. She sped toward them and the lobster boats fled, leaving behind submerged boxes, which were believed to be cases of liquor which were to be towed ashore underwater.

POLICE STATION Has No Terrors For This Thief

Enters Soft Drink Place Next Door and Proceeds to Help Himself.

Fear of the police never entered the cranium of the bold, bad marauder who broke into the Virginia restaurant and soft drink emporium of J. J. Jackson, 181 Decatur street, next door to the city's headquarters for law enforcement, early Friday morning.

As captains, sergeants and a cluster of headquarters men were whiling away the dog watch between midnight and 4:30 o'clock in the morning, a thief removed the bar on the back door of the drink stand and walked in to see what he could find in the way of cold cash.

When the proprietors arrived early Friday morning they discovered the loss of $9 in money and a quantity of cigars, cigarettes and light lunches. Mr. Thug had replenished the inner man and slipped out the same way he came in.

There was only one thing he forgot. He turned off the electric light by unfastening the globe from the socket with a pair of snuffy hands. Finger prints stood out boldly on the bulb.

Capt. M. J. Wright, of the identification bureau, is now trying to match the prints he took from the globe with a long list of carls in his file, but at a late hour Friday night he reported no success.

Savannah, Ga., May 4.—(Special.) Dr. John W. Daniel, of Savannah, prominent in world war medical work and now in American Legion activity, was elected president of the Georgia Medical association at the concluding session of its 74th annual convention this afternoon.

Augusta was chosen as the meeting place for next year's convention. Dr. J. A. Mooney, of Statesboro, was elected first vice president, receiving a majority of votes on the first ballot and more than two-thirds on the second ballot.

Rules Are Suspended.
By special action of the convention in suspending the operation of the constitution and by-laws, Dr. Henry C. Wheelchel, of Douglas, was elected second vice president by acclamation.

Dr. Wheelchel, who is a veteran of the profession in the state, is at his home seriously ill, missing this convention. He is said to have failed to attend, it is said, in half a century. Rules forbidding the election to office of a member not present, Dr. Wheelchel was graduated at Augusta, practiced at Dahlonega many years, where he was physician to the North Georgia Agricultural college, and moved to Douglas 20 years ago.

In halloing for the first vice president's place both Dr. Hulbert, of Augusta, and Dr. M. N. Head, of Pike county, received many votes.

In taking the chair the new president announced a constructive program for the association in the form of a series of post-graduate clinics to be held in five cities of the state, Atlanta, Macon, Augusta and Savannah being included.

These clinics will be held every

DEBS DECLINES OFFER TO VISIT SOVIET RUSSIA

Moscow, May 4.—Eugene V. Debs, leader of the socialist party in the United States, has declined an invitation to visit Russia because he has not fully recovered his health.

In a letter received by M. Kalinin, president of soviet Russia, and Madam Kameneva, wife of the president of the Moscow soviet, Debs expressed his regret that he could not accept the invitation extended to him by the central commission for fighting the after effects of the famine. Kalinin and Madam Kameneva are in charge of the famine relief organization.

"I beg you to believe," stated Debs, "that I feel myself specially honored in the recognition that you thus bestow upon me and my humble services, and I return my deepest thanks to you and the members of your commission for the partiality thus shown me. While I am not able to visit Russia on account of being still in a convalescent state as regards my health and of engagements already made of an imperative nature which will keep me fully occupied in the United States for some time to come, I hope I may be able to do myself that pleasurable duty at a later day."

"Meanwhile you may rest assured that I shall continue to render the starving children of soviet Russia all possible aid and encourage every effort put forth in that direction by the friends of soviet Russia."

The invitation which Debs declined was forwarded to him through the New York headquarters of the friends of soviet Russia.

Railway Employees Plan to Wage War Against Fee System

An intensive campaign to abolish the fee system of remuneration for county officials will be waged by the Atlanta Federation of Railway Employees when the general assembly convenes here in June, it was stated Friday by Charles Hill, secretary of the association.

Resolutions were adopted recently by the federation looking toward the abolition of the fee system. Mr. Hill stated. A bill to abolish the system in all counties of the state will be introduced by the DeKalb delegation, it was stated.

London, May 4.—The British government is preparing a note to Russia deliberately calculated to force a quarrel and bring about a rupture of political and commercial relations between the two countries, according to The Daily Herald. The newspaper stated that it has every reason to believe that the British note will not be couched in the ordinary language of diplomacy.

The communication, according to The Herald, will make protests against:

1. Treatment of priests in Russia.
2. Seizure by pirates of the British trawler Murren.

3. The tone of communications the Russian government has been addressing to the British representative in Moscow.

4. Breaches by Russia of trade agreements between the two countries.

Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the labor party in the house of commons, in an interview declared:

"If we break off trading relations with Russia there will be political repercussions which will gravely hinder a settlement on the continent and probably cause the white guards and other reactionaries to become active again."

Clifford Allen, the chairman of the independent labor party, declared that a hostile note "may prove the signal for the whole of Europe to become embroiled over this issue."

Allen appealed to labor all over the country to hold demonstrations against a rupture with Russia.

Statesmen Argue
Answer to Offer

Premier of Belgium Would State Definite Terms for German Settlement.

Paris, May 4.—The French and Belgian statesmen are at odds on the character of the answer to be dispatched to Germany's reparations offer.

Belgian representatives Friday deliberated on the note of Premier Poincare, which is a flat rejection of Germany's offer to settle the reparations account for thirty billion gold marks. It is understood that Premier Theunis, of Belgium, wants to state the definite terms for which the allies will settle but that Poincare is opposed to this, maintaining that it is up to Germany to make a suitable offer.

Those who are close to the French government declare that Poincare's draft outlines a number of conditions, including cessation of resistance in the Ruhr, acceptance of the principle of evacuation only in ratio to payments, acceptance of previous reparations figures and practical guarantees of France's security against future German aggression.

POTATO STOREHOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed one of the largest potato drying houses in Fulton county Friday night at 8 o'clock, when residents of the community of Orchard Knob, near Lakewood Heights, gathered around with buckets to prevent the flames from spreading. Built at a cost of $2,000 last summer, the house had not yet served its first year for the farmers in the neighborhood. There were only 600 bushels of potatoes in it at the time of the blaze. Farmers had recently marketed a large shipment from the storehouse, which was owned by the Orchard Knob Farmers' union.

CORD TIRE MEN USING COTTON FROM EGYPT

Sea Island Supply Short of Demand, Silberling Says.

Due to the onslaught of the boll weevil in the south, greatly reducing the production of Sea Island cotton, manufacturers of cord tires now get the majority of their long staple cotton from the Nile river valley in Egypt. F. J. Seiberling, president of the Seiberling Rubber company, of Akron, Ohio, and founder of the Good-year Tire and Rubber company, told a Constitution reporter Friday afternoon.

Mr. Seiberling is stopping over in Atlanta for a few days, having come here from Cumberland Gap, Tenn., where he attended exercises at the Lincoln Memorial university a few days ago. Mr. Seiberling invented the first tire building machine, and was head of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company for 23 years.

He says that in order to get the staple required for the manufacture of the cord tires that it was necessary to reclaim desert land in Arizona, and that a year ago 150,000 acres of this land was producing an average of one-half a bale of Arizona-Egyptian cotton to the acre. This with the supply of Sea Island obtained from the south, which now amounts to about 15,000 bales instead of the 125,000 of three years ago, is entirely inadequate to supply the manufacturers, he says.

"This is my first visit to Atlanta in five years," Mr. Seiberling said, "and I am surprised to see the number of new buildings that have been erected and others in the process of construction. Our local branch has enjoyed splendid growth in sales, under the direction of our manager, H. I. Walters."

Mr. Seiberling will leave Atlanta Saturday for a visit to Macon.

J. O. U. A. M. TO HEAR

J. A. MORRIS SUNDAY

Joseph A. Morris, Atlanta lawyer, will address the good of the order committee, Junior Order United American Mechanics, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, at 28 1/2 Capitol avenue. All Juniors and Daughters of America are urged to attend.

The present rate of pay of a private in the United States army is $21 a month. A recruit who enlisted before July 1, 1922, receives the war rate of $30 a month.

GIRLS' HI STUDENTS TO PRESENT COMEDY

"When Bunt Pulls the String," a quaint old comedy of the English rural life, is the title of a play to be offered by the senior dramatic club of Girls' High school, at 2:30 and 8:15 o'clock tonight in Commercial High school auditorium.

Leading roles will be taken by Miss Gwendolyn Ferris and Miss Claude Henderson. Others appearing in the cast will include Misses DeLeat, Margaret Gann, Frances Chambers, Eleanor Seal, Susan Clayton and Virginia Moss.

The British army is to be reduced to 33,000 officers and men. The personnel involves the disbandment of 24 battalions of infantry, 47 batteries of artillery and five cavalry regiments.

Legion Band to Give
First Public Concert
Next Saturday Night

The 20-piece band of Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion, will give its first public concert at 8 o'clock next Saturday night at Peachtree Arcade. The band was formed last fall, and is composed entirely of members of that post. Uniforms were recently secured, being a combination of blue coats, gray trousers and Sam Brown belts. Professor Thomas Altobellis is director of the musicians.

sumed the role of auctioneer Friday, disposing of two mules and as many calves for the sum of $44.

"Johnny" Wood, popular call officer, fell heir to the toothless mule through his bid of $10.50. The other was sold to a negro drayman for $23.50. One of the calves brought $8 and the other $2.

Tax on Foodstuffs
Repealed by Turks
For Near East Relief

Secretary of State Hughes has just succeeded in inducing the Turkish nationalist government to repeal the duty on foodstuffs sent to the Turkish empire for the starving Christians of the Near East, according to an announcement made Friday by E. R. Black, state chairman of the Near East relief.

Several weeks ago Kemal Pasha imposed duties amounting to $15,000 a day on supplies sent to relief of starving Christians in the Turkish territory.

Vigorous protest was made to the American state department by Charles V. Vickrey, of New York, general secretary of the Near East relief. Mr. Vickrey contended that such an outrageous duty would not only greatly decrease the number of refugees that could be fed, but it would be breaking faith with the American people who are so cheerfully giving to this cause.

For six years funds have been collected and disbursed at an overhead of only 5 per cent. The Near East relief has challenged every charitable organization in the world to equal this record for efficient management and it has never been disputed. To pay such a duty would greatly increase this figure, it is said.

fresh
in a new blue airtight bucket

as easy to open as winding the clock!

IF YOU ever put up fruits or vegetables yourself, you know that they must be truly airtight. A cover, even if it is on pretty tight, won't do. Only a truly airtight tin will keep things fresh.

Every shortening is a fat. If it is pure fat, without a "preservative" of course it will grow stale and finally even rancid unless it is in an airtight tin.

Snowdrift is packed in truly airtight buckets. When you open the bucket in your kitchen, you find Snowdrift as pure and fresh as the day it was made.

And the new Snowdrift bucket is easier to open than any other truly airtight tin we ever saw.

SHORT LINE MEN END CONVENTION

Discussion of Rate Revision, Demurrage, and Prompt Removal of Cars Occupies Last Session.

Discussion of recently proposed revision of freight rates on more than 300 commodities by truck lines, problems of demurrage, and prompt removal and placing of cars, occupied the greater part of the closing session Friday of the semi-annual southeastern regional conference of the American Short Line Railroad association, which convened Thursday at the Piedmont hotel.

The limited time of the conference did not permit consideration of the motor transportation and problem of short line railroads, nor the handling of perishable goods, as was planned, it was explained.

D. M. Goodwyn speaks.

D. M. Goodwyn, chairman of the fourth section committee of the Southern Freight association, was one of the principal speakers. He described the growth and progress of short line railroads in the development of the south.

John A. Streeter, traffic manager of the southeastern division of the American Short Line Railroad association, made a short talk, in which he explained that the interstate commerce commission recently had ordered a uniform rate on all day rate on all day rate on all day rate.

Standard Training School Sessions To Open Sunday

Well-Known Bible Teachers in Charge of Fourth Annual Session.

Fourth annual session of the Atlanta Standard Training school, with a number of well known Bible teachers in charge, will open Sunday at the First Methodist church.

A preliminary session, in charge of Professor Hugh H. Harris, of Emory university, will be held Sunday afternoon at 3:30 for the enrollment and classification of students.

Among the features of the course will be the Bible lecture each evening, delivered by Dr. Andrew Sledd, of Emory university, to which the public is cordially invited.

Joel Hunter, chairman of the board of managers, announces that the largest enrollment in the history of the school is expected this year.

The Park Street church has already enrolled 100, he said.

The program follows:

General Units.
Bible Course—Dr. Andrew Sledd, instructor; text-book, "The Life and Letters of Paul" (Carter).
Young People's Agencies—Miss Lucy Foreman, instructor; text-book, "The Pupil" (Baker).

The Christian Religion—Dr. W. A. Smart, instructor; text-book, "The Program of the Christian Religion" (Baker).
Specialization Units.

Beginner Lesson Materials—Miss Willette Allen, instructor; text-book, "How to Teach Religion" (Baker).
Primary Lesson Materials—Mrs. W. P. Foreman, instructor; text-book, "How to Teach Religion" (Baker).

Junior Lesson Materials—Miss Nannie Baker, instructor; text-book, "How to Teach Religion" (Baker).
Intermediate Lesson Materials—Professor Hugh H. Harris, instructor; text-book, "How to Teach Religion" (Baker).

Young People's Agencies—Miss Lucy Foreman, instructor; text-book, "Handbook for Workers with Young People" (Thompson).
Adult Organization and Administration—Rev. W. C. Owen, instructor; text-book, "The Adult Worker and Work" (Baker).

The Sunday School—Rev. J. H. Montgomery, instructor; text-book, to be announced.

The sessions of the school will be held in the early evening in order that those who work during the day may attend regularly without inconvenience. Supper will be provided by the ladies of the various churches in the city at a minimum price.

Daily Schedule.
6:00-6:30—Supper.
6:30-7:30—Class period.
7:30-7:45—Recess.
7:45-8:30—Class period.

INVESTIGATE DEATH IN 1917 OF M'AVOY

Moultrie, Ga., May 4.—Investigation of the death of H. A. McAvoy, which occurred in a local hotel in April, 1917, has been started by relatives of the dead man who live in Savannah. Upon inquiry from the physician who saw McAvoy shortly before he died, it was learned that he had been advised that the death certificate given by the coroner was the cause. Further plans of the relatives are unknown.

While army officials refuse to give any information as to the findings of the board appointed to inquire into the sergeant's death, it was understood they will accept the suicide theory of city detectives.

Sergeant Lamo met his death about 6:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in a room in the Alvin hotel, 812 North Forsyth street, from a pistol wound in the right temple, which passed entirely through the head. Two shells had been exploded in the large army automatic pistol which police found upon his breast.

So far as could be learned Friday, nothing had been developed to show any connection between Sergeant Lamo's death and that of Private John Kollanus several weeks ago, whose dead body was found in a creek near Fort McPherson with the throat cut. Both Lamo and Kollanus were natives of Finland and close friends.

DR. J. D. LANIER OPENS ATLANTA DENTAL OFFICES

Dr. J. D. Lanier, of Macon, who with his son, Sidney, recently has been figuring in Bibb county courts as a result of suits filed by Mrs. Peggy Lewis Lanier, has opened business headquarters in Atlanta at the New York Dental offices over Liggett's Drug store, at Five Points.

Dr. Lanier has charge of the chain of dental offices from Atlanta to Tampa, Fla., and stated Friday night that his company's parlors here would be complete in every detail.

Pioneer Georgia Peach Grower Dies In Dublin, Ireland

One of the first growers of peaches in Georgia, John H. Parnell, city marshal of Dublin, Ireland, died Thursday at that place at the age of 80 years, according to news received here Friday. He lived near West Point, Ga., about 30 years ago, and started the movement to grow peaches on a larger scale than had been conceived before.

He was a brother of Charles Stewart Parnell, noted Irish leader, who was a high official in the home rule government. He had great many friends in Georgia and Alabama.

Special Program Arranged for Men At St. Luke's Sunday

Men are especially invited to attend St. Luke's Episcopal church Sunday, by Dr. C. B. Wilmer, the rector, who has prepared a special sermon for the occasion.

The Men's club of the church has sent out letters to all male members of the parish asking them to put off automobile rides and golf games on the sixth and go to church. E. Bruce Young, president of the club, has made special arrangements to welcome them, he says.

Miss Margit Nordin is probably the only woman who ever covered 60 miles on skis in 10 hours. She did this in the Vasa ski run held recently in Sweden to commemorate an exploit 400 years ago of King Gustavus I. Vasa. Miss Nordin was the only woman among the 161 entrants.

CUTS ANNOUNCED IN FREIGHT RATES

Revision Downward Is Made in Tariff on Agricultural Instruments Into Southeastern Territory.

Reduction in freight rates on agricultural implements from eastern and middle western territory into Georgia and southeastern states effective July 1 were announced by carriers Friday following a meeting of shippers and carrier representatives Thursday in the Brown building.

This is the second announcement of reductions this week, the first being a cut in iron and steel rates from middle western and eastern points to southeastern territory.

Other Reductions.

These two reductions are forerunners of a general reduction to be made on all commodities shipped into the southeast from eastern and middle western territories, officials explained, and will be made under section four of the interstate commerce commission which enjoins the roads from charging higher rates for a short haul than for a long haul.

Reduction of rates on canned goods from the same territories named into the southeast will be considered at a meeting Monday.

Following are the reductions authorized on farm implements:

From St. Louis to Atlanta, from 70 1/2 to 64 cents per 100 pounds; from Cincinnati, from 55 1/2 cents to 51 cents; from Chicago, 53 1/2 cents to 48 cents; from Pittsburgh, from 58 1/2 to 53 cents.

Rate reductions on iron and steel made are:

St. Louis to Atlanta, from 57 to 49 cents; from Cincinnati, from 44 to 42 cents; from Chicago, from 62 1/2 cents to 58 cents; from Pittsburgh, from 70 1/2 to 58 cents.

Proposed reductions on canned goods to be considered Monday are:

From St. Louis to Atlanta, from present rate of 70 1/2 to 65 cents per 100 pounds; from Cincinnati from 61 cents to 54 cents, and from Chicago, from 80 cents to 71 cents.

Reductions on freight rates for furniture proposed are from $1.20 to $1.05 from St. Louis to Atlanta and from 96 cents to 88 cents from Cincinnati to Atlanta.

NEGRO CONVICTS GONE No Trace of Two Who Made Their Escape.

Joe Askew and James Nolan, two negro convicts who made a sensational escape from a motor truck in Hapeville Thursday morning, had not been captured at a late hour Friday night, although hunted by city and county police.

The negroes saved their shackles off while in the van being transported to road work. The motor van was in charge of Camp Foreman R. P. Marlow and Taylor Banforth, a guard.

WHITE TO PRESENT CHARTER FRIDAY TO BUSINESS CLUB

The American Business club of Atlanta will be presented with its charter Friday, May 11, by William L. White, acting general director of the southern division of Birmingham, it was announced Friday at the weekly luncheon held at the Colonial cafe.

E. A. Banker, vice president of the club, will make the principal address, and a well-known quartet has been secured by "Pup" Phillips, chairman of the entertainment committee.

In announcing a proposal for an increase in membership, Dr. C. C. Aven, president of the club, stated that the club offered unusual opportunities for the young men of Atlanta in that it was directly a young man's club, whereas other civic organizations catered to older men.

Mrs. Rose L. Mathews, popular WGM radio star, entertained the club with several vocal solos. She was accompanied by Mrs. McClure.

REALTY MAN RECOVERS FROM LONG ILLNESS

James L. Logan, widely known real estate dealer, with offices in the Atlanta Trust company building, has practically recovered from an illness of nearly three weeks' duration. He returned to his office Friday.

According to reports a soldier's bonus bill will be the first piece of legislation introduced when the sixtieth congress is convened in December.

YOUR blood, S. S. S. has given new, long-forgotten strength to older people and has made many old and young people look years younger. Blood is thick and heavy-laden, is slow to throw off its impurities. What happens? The impurities crowd out through the skin—boils and pimples appear—you feel sluggish and tired! The remedy for this condition is S. S. S. It is the ideal blood purifier, because the medicinal properties are purely vegetable. KLAN TO INVESTIGATE VIENNA WARNING NOTE

Negroes Told to Move, But Paper Does Not Bear Official Seal.

A thorough investigation of type-written warnings signed "K. K. K." which are said to have been recently placed under the doors of three leading negroes in Vienna, Ga., was promised Friday by officials of the Knights of Ku Klux Klan in Atlanta, who emphatically denied that the Klan had been responsible for the warnings.

Nathan Bedford Forrest, grand dragon for the state of Georgia, informed The Constitution that there is no Klan in Vienna or at any other point in Dooly county.

F. L. Savage, chief of staff, declared that the imperial palace would exert every effort to ascertain the identity of the author or authors of the letters.

Warnings Typewritten. One of the warnings, neatly typewritten on a blank sheet of paper, was furnished The Constitution by Dr. C. T. Stovall, its correspondent at Vienna, who stated that the note had been placed under the door of a leading negro business man at Vienna by an unidentified person. Two other negroes there have received similar notices, he said.

Exodus of Blacks. "The reported exodus of negroes in Dooly county is regrettable," Mr. Savage stated Friday night. "It is our intention to exhaust every means to learn the identity of the party or parties who are operating under the guise of the Ku Klux Klan in Vienna. The Ku Klux Klan will not let such an incident pass without a thorough investigation."

The warning, which notified the recipient to vacate the premises he occupied, because they were needed for other purposes, and stating that it would be unwise to ignore the note, was immediately referred to the imperial officers of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Letter Puzzling. Had the klansmen in Vienna been responsible for the communications, Mr. Savage stated, the documents would have borne the official seal of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. In view of the fact that the warning which Dr. Stovall sent to Atlanta was written on plain paper, bearing no seal of the order, he was positive that the organization was in no way a party to the incident.

Dr. Stovall is a prominent physician of Vienna and has been The Constitution's correspondent at that point for more than a quarter of a century. The warning read as follows:

"The ground on which this building is located is needed for other purposes; you are, therefore, notified to move to other quarters before May 1. Notify the party from whom you rent at once and do not wait for another notice."

"We have no ill feelings toward you but wish these buildings vacated at once," K. K. K."

Dr. Stovall's letter. Following is the letter of Dr. Stovall:

"Editor Constitution: As your correspondent I deem it my duty to submit the enclosed to you to do with it as you please. The enclosed slip and two others like it were placed under the doors of the most prominent negro places of business in this city a few nights ago, by an unknown person. Of course it stampeded them."

"It is admitted that these negroes are law-abiding; their business is carried on in an orderly manner."

To Build Church In Single Day For Big Revival

Carpenters Will Be at Work Early This Morning on Lakewood Christian Tabernacle.

To provide quarters for a series of revival meetings which begin Sunday afternoon, the congregation of the newly organized Lakewood Christian church today will undertake to build a church in one day.

Before the majority of Atlantans have rubbed the sleep well out of their eyes, between 30 and 40 men will gather at the intersection of Lakewood avenue and South Pryor street with hammers, saws and other carpenters' tools to begin their task.

A frame structure to be used as a tabernacle until a more permanent building can be erected, is planned. The workmen will halt at noon and dine on barbecue and other delicacies.

The construction work will be under the supervision of J. W. Nelms and R. M. Spinks. A number of members from neighboring congregations will assist in the work. Judge T. O. Hatcock, of the municipal court, and a leader in the congregation of the Capitol View Christian church, will take part in the proceedings, as will the clerk, J. E. Thrift, who is superintendent of the Sunday school of the newly organized Christian congregation in Lakewood.

Sunday afternoon Rev. Owen Still of LaGrange, the Christian evangelist for this district, will open a series of revival meetings. He will be assisted by the pastor, Rev. J. P. Hardie, gree.

May Establish Free Schools of Health In Other Cities Soon

Negotiations are pending with persons in St. Louis, Chicago and other cities, that may result in branches of the Free School of Health being established in those cities, it was announced Friday by Robert Bryan Harrison, president of the Atlanta school, who is conferring with a prominent St. Louis citizen, who was in Atlanta Friday.

Mr. Harrison stated that a school would probably be opened there in the near future. The parent institution will remain in Atlanta.

Uniform System For City Employees' Vacations Planned

A uniform system for granting annual vacations to city employees will be devised by City Controller B. Graham Smith within the next few days, it was announced Friday at city hall.

In past seasons considerable difficulty has been experienced in arranging for employees to be absent in vacation periods and some departments have granted longer vacations than others. All this will be arranged uniformly under the new system, it was stated.

PERSONNEL DINNER MEET NEXT FRIDAY

The regular dinner meeting of the Personnel association will be held at the chamber of commerce cafe at 6 p. m., Friday, May 11.

A. I. Hardy, of the home office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company of New York, will be the speaker for this occasion, his talk being on personnel work and its value to an organization. A film will be shown outlining the personnel work done by the Metropolitan.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR PHILLIPS HELD

Columbus, Ga., May 4.—Funeral services for E. Phillips, 72, who died suddenly here Thursday morning, were held at his residence Friday, Dr. C. R. Jenkins, pastor of St. Luke's Methodist church, officiating. Mr. Phillips was a well known merchant of Columbus.

20,000,000 BALES OF COTTON NEEDED

Clarence Ousley Warns Against Too Great Increase in Cotton Acreage, Despite Forecast.

Pinehurst, N. C., May 4.—Balanced, self-sustaining agriculture and intelligent marketing were recommended to the south by Clarence Ousley, of Fort Worth, Texas, formerly assistant secretary of agriculture, speaking before the North Carolina bankers association convention here today.

With this address on domestic affairs and a discussion of banking methods the Tarheel bankers heard Brigadier General Laurence D. Tyson, of Knoxville, Tenn., formerly of the famous Thirtieth division, talk of international conditions.

He made a plea for leniency regarding foreign loans but not cancellation, and expressed the opinion that had the United States "had the wisdom to have ratified, with reservations, the league of nations, that the world would have been at peace today and conditions different."

Mr. Ousley said that today indebtedness for the most part has been reduced to the proportions of prudent accommodation to operating concerns and money is easy for every legitimate and promising undertaking, and that cotton sells freely at more than twice pre-war prices and well above the cost of production.

20,000,000 Bales Needed. "At the present rate of consumption the world will need about 20,000,000 bales of cotton in 1923-24. As the production of 1922-23 was only about 14,000,000 bales, the unthinking jump at the conclusion that the near famine which is now apparent warrants all the acreage that can be put under the plow. They overlook two important factors. One is that a consumption of 20,000,000 bales may be reduced to the 17,000,000, as it was four years ago, without doing wholesale acreage for naught. The other is that for the last two years the south has produced only about half the world's supply and that if the other producing regions increase acreage as much as we seem to be doing, the total supply may considerably exceed the demand."

"Dependence upon cotton as the sole means of subsistence for the farm family and work animals is unscientific," Mr. Ousley said, "because it does not afford full time employment but requires expensive seasonal labor and because it provides no alternative source of income in case of disaster from weather or pest or market."

Methods Improve. "Another notable achievement of the last two years," he said, "has been the improvement in methods of marketing."

Mr. Ousley declared, however, that improved farm practice and better methods of marketing would have "availed little without resourceful and courageous banking."

"I raise the question whether it would not be wise for our cotton mills to take advantage of the Webb-Pomerehne act for promoting foreign trade and establishing direct foreign contracts."

"With our new success in financing export cotton we should have no serious difficulty in financing export dry goods," he said.

Favors Leniency. General Tyson stated he favored leniency but not cancellation of foreign debts, adding that he did not believe the United States had given France, in the latter's efforts to secure reparations from Germany, the "whole-hearted support and co-operation she should have had from us as her ally." "This country," he continued, "cannot remain isolated in its foreign policy."

After paying a tribute to Woodrow Wilson, General Tyson concluded: "I believe it was the fear of the German vote and the vote of our foreign born population and German propaganda that defeated the league of nations, and I believe also that the fear of the same vote and influence and propaganda is largely controlling the foreign policy of this country today."

"I think, however, the conscience of America is being awakened and that we will yet do our part in the world and be worthy of ourselves."

THOMAS TO PRESIDE OVER CRIMINAL COURT

Assign Fulton Judges for May Term—Jury Raps Fee System.

Judge E. D. Thomas, who has been presiding in the various civil divisions of Fulton superior court, will preside over the criminal division during the May term, it was learned Friday at the courthouse.

Judge Thomas will organize the grand jury and select the petit jury. All writs for habeas corpus will be presented to him.

Judge W. D. Ellis will preside in the first division and organize juries. He will also handle the trial calendar and send cases to the second division for trial before Judge George L. Bell.

The motion division, or third division, will be presided over by Judge John D. Humphries, who has been handling the criminal division.

The March grand jury adjourned Friday after delivering to Judge R. N. Hardeman, presiding in criminal court for Judge Humphries, presentations urging the abolition of the present fee system of compensation for county officers and the creation of an additional division of Fulton superior court.

Fred W. Cole was foreman of the grand jury and eight 20c be demerits were returned during its existence.

HARRIS IS GREETED BY PEOPLE IN TAYLOR Butler, Ga., May 4.—(Special.) United States Senator William J. Harris was greeted by a large and appreciative Taylor county audience Wednesday when he delivered splendid addresses at Reynolds in the forenoon and Butler in the afternoon, in which he reviewed his work in congress during the past four years. Here, as elsewhere, his visit was particularly for the purpose of getting acquainted and studying the needs of the people whom he is serving with fidelity and zeal.

MRS. W. A. GRESHAM, FORMER ATLANTAN, DIES IN PICKENS

Mrs. Mattie L. Gresham, wife of W. A. Gresham, of Pickens, S. C., died Friday morning at 2:45 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Hester, also of Pickens, according to word received here Friday night.

Mrs. Gresham was born in Pickens county, South Carolina, February 24, 1881. Following her marriage in October, 1898, Mr. and Mrs. Gresham moved to Atlanta and lived here until about a month ago, when because of failing health they returned to Pickens.

Mr. Gresham is manager of the Gracefield Greenhouses, of Greenville, S. C., and was formerly proprietor of Gresham Greenhouses in Atlanta.

Mrs. Gresham is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Mae E. Gossett, of Atlanta; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Hester, of Pickens.

Luxury For Sore Feet Skin specialists have discovered that painful, perspiring and swollen feet with corns, bunions and ingrowing nails are all caused by germs which grow in the pores of the skin, causing decay of the epidermis, irritation, redness, eczema, inflammation and odor. These germs are instantly destroyed by Eucapine, the antiseptic, healing, saline, applied after bathing at bedtime. It draws out all the inflammation and soreness before morning, destroys the germs and restores healthy condition to the skin and nails.

It is explained that ingrowing nails do not really grow down into the flesh, as supposed, but that the flesh, being swollen, is pressed up over the nail. The Eucapine takes out the swelling and inflammation, destroys the germs and the trouble disappears. Corns and bunions gradually disappear in the same manner by removing the cause.

Eucapine is the modern scientific treatment for pain, inflammation and germ infections of the skin and mucous membranes and has many daily uses in every home. Ask your druggist to send you a family jar, price 50 cents.—(Adv.)

Great Gain—Goddiness with contentment is great gain.—1 Timothy 6:6.

A BOLD PROPOSAL.

The application of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, made upon the general board in Washington, that it be permitted to establish a branch in Cuba, is an unwarranted and unjustified attempt at commercial competition in a government agency, and seeks to violate even the fundamental ethics of sound business.

The proposal, if granted, would completely overstep the regional plan as provided in the federal reserve law. This plan was intended to be a check valve against just such an attempt as that now proposed.

This has been one of the most serious complaints heretofore lodged against the system, and has made of it the political football that it is today.

It is unthinkable that the federal reserve board therefore will give even serious thought to any such proposition.

In the first place the system's business with the banks of Cuba is conducted today, and satisfactorily, through the sixth district reserve bank, this district being contiguous to Cuba, Florida being one of the states of the district, and within quick touch with Havana. This business is handled through the branch bank at Jacksonville, which is ideally located for the purpose.

The letter and the spirit of the law both make the Cuban business a part of the Atlanta district, and W. P. G. Harding, formerly governor of the federal board, who now, as governor of the Boston bank, makes this unprecedented appeal, personally sought the authorization of congress for the building of a $400,000 building in Jacksonville, a branch of the Atlanta bank, in order to facilitate this business with Cuba.

That building is now being completed, and should the federal reserve board grant the petition of the Boston bank the government board would reverse its own policy as to handling the Cuban business created by the very head who now, under a change of positions, seeks that reversal.

Even if the very purpose of the regional system did not prevent it, there is no more sense nor justification in the Boston reserve bank opening a branch in Cuba, ignoring the legal rights of the sixth district, which is contiguous, than for the Atlanta bank to open a branch in Halifax, ignoring the legal rights of the first district, which is contiguous.

They are identically analogous cases, and yet if the Atlanta reserve bank should seek to open a branch in Halifax there would be a doubt as to the business sanity of the proponents of any such wild and visionary scheme.

In 1920 the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank began furnishing its notes in Cuba. It now has around $40,000,000 in circulation in that country.

This circulation materially helps its reserve, and to that end increases the usefulness of the Atlanta bank to serve best its large agricultural territory.

Any curtailment of this Cuban business by this proposed territorial infringement on the part of the Boston bank will seriously impair this usefulness.

It is therefore a matter of deep concern to every business man and farmer in Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Tennessee and Mississippi that the proposal of the Boston bank shall not be granted.

As an outstanding fact there is no reason nor constitutional justification for a branch bank of the United States federal reserve system in any foreign country, and most assuredly not in Cuba, where its business is actually in closer geographical touch with Jacksonville than is the bulk of the business of the sixth district with its main regional bank in Atlanta.

Business men of the sixth reserve district should wire their United States senators at once that this Boston proposal should not be granted; and banks of the district should wire Governor Crissinger of the federal reserve board protesting accordingly.

The protests by all means should be against any definite action until the new southern member of the board has a voice in the proceeding.

MINNESOTA SENATORSHIP.

Considerable speculation as to who will succeed the late Senator Knute Nelson, of Minnesota, and particularly as to what republican school he will belong to, and as to the permanency of his seat, and so on, is being indulged in by party leaders throughout the country.

An analysis of the situation indicates that whoever may be appointed for the ad interim term the farm bloc-progressives will gain a nose, and the stand-pat Harding faction will lose a nose.

The immediate prospect is that Governor Preus, a republican of more conservative than radical type, will name a short term successor with the distinct understanding that the governor himself will stand in the primary for the next regular six-year term.

In that connection, planning his own contest ahead, it is regarded as not improbable that he will yield to the influence, at least partially, of the Brookhart-Shipstead non-partisan school. Governor Preus does not subscribe to the extreme radical views of the now senior senator from Minnesota, who is of the La Follette type, but it is probable that he will treat with him at least to the point of appointing a progressive who will square with those "bloc progressives" who stand on a middle ground between the Harding element and the La Follette-Brookhart-Shipstead element.

For the full term it is almost certain that Governor Preus, Representative Harold Knutson, republican, and Representative Thomas D. Schall, the blind member from the Minneapolis district, will stand.

All of these men have been shaping their political lines to make this race anyway in 1924, even had Senator Nelson, whose term expires March 4, 1925, lived. Of the three it is considered certain that the senatorial radicals, unless an understanding may be reached with Governor Preus, will support Schall, whose views conform very closely to those of Shipstead. The latter is regarded as the controlling factor in Minnesota politics now and until the wave of non-partisan fanaticism which spread over that section of the northwest in 1920, may have spent its force.

Schall, it will be recalled, is the author of a proposed change in the federal constitution to prevent majority-of-one decisions of the supreme court from overturning congressional legislation. He mustered almost the entire radical following of both houses behind him, and in that campaign was largely responsible for the recent attack made upon Chief Justice Taft because he received a bequest under the will of Andrew Carnegie.

It is said that the interim honor may fall to Representative Sidney Anderson. The latter was chairman of the farmers' fact-finding commission created in 1921, largely through the influence of Charles S. Barrett, of Georgia.

Mr. Anderson's committee made several trips through the agricultural states, issued lots of statistics, but did nothing of a constructive nature; and became the subject of deep censure from farm organizations having legislative representatives in Washington. He is favorable, however, to the "farm bloc" movement.

Blame your weather-troubles on the Gulf Stream, and let it lose 'em in the ocean.

Editor McIntosh, the best fishing authority in Georgia, says that the man who has an inexhaustible bait-bed is now one of the most popular members of society.

The Irish republicans refuse to lay down their arms until they're knocked off their feet.

Anyway, the weather has been too wet for campaign speeches anywhere.

"Automobiles for children," says the Indianapolis News, "ought to be bought at toy stores."

So the ruling is that American ships can sell booze outside the three-mile limit. They are doing all they can to make that three-mile limit famous.

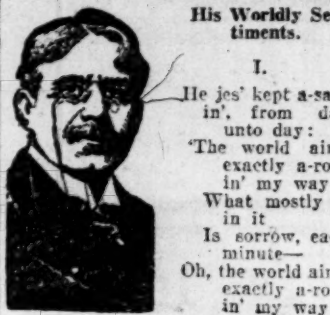

The New York Tribune cites, as the newest thing in optimism, "the equipment of the steamship Leviathan with a complete set of cocktail and liquor glasses."

Predictions as to next summer's weather are not interesting. What we want to know is—how about genuine spring?

So many predictions of a warm May, it may be advisable to speak early for your tickets to the picnic.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON.

I.
He jes' kept a-sayin' from day unto day:
"The world ain't exactly a-rollin' in my way!
What mostly is in it
Is sorrow, each minute—
Oh, the world ain't exactly a-rollin' in my way!"

II.
When they'd tell him, "The birds sing 'neath heavens of gray,"
He'd answer: "They never are singin' my way!"
There's a sigh in the notes
That thrill from their throats—
Oh, the birds ain't exactly a-singin' my way!"

III.
But when Death came, an' told him:
"There's no use to stay
In a world that is never a-rollin' your way!"
He didn't admire
The prospect of fire,
But the world, at that time, wasn't rollin' his way!"

An early spring item from the Linn Budget is that a lake is just a river with no place to go.

His Revival Hymn.
(Song of Brother Williams.)
Sodom was a city 'stroyed by fire—
'O, de road ter destruction!
Annihilus wuz de first big lay—
'O, de road ter destruction!

When I gits home, whar de glory shine
An' hang up my bat an' coat,
I'll pull dat fruit from de Gospel vine,
An' sail in de Gospel boat!

Evo say de apple wuz rood ter eat—
'O, de road ter destruction!
Adam, he say dat hit's toible sweet—
'O, de road ter destruction!

When I gits home whar de light shine bright
An' de trouble don't come no more,
I'll rise up early, an' I'll fly out o' here,
An' dance on de gospel floor!

A Great Life.
The Osborn Enterprise gets off this spring ground.

"Now comes the time of the year when it becomes necessary for the man of the house to discover, on entering his domicile, that the chief attraction for the next ten days will be new wall paper, paint, varnish, nipped thumbs, rumpled carpet, concentrated lice and 'blue' atmosphere. It is that, grand, glorious, almost heavenly house-clearing time. The time when a man wishes he was an Isotrope or a Fiji Islander or an Eskimo or anything that did not have to sprank the floors two pointed tacks out of a hard pine floor with an old broken can opener. Then think of the pale, lukewarm coffee, and left-over sinners for breakfast. The steamed prunes, cold spuds and hardtack for the noon gorge, and what's left for supper, not to mention the refreshing night's rest on a pile of most anything that is not soft. It is a great life, it thou weakest not."

Love's Way.
I.
Love said he'd scatter jewels
In his sweetheart's way.
But Love had not a gun to pawn
When Love knew not the deep, dia mines
Where precious jewels star.

II.
And Love—he fell a-weepin'.
"Whist! he'll tell de condemn.
"And take my tears," Love told them.
"Each tear is as a gem!"
But the hailiffs took Love's sword and cloak,
And raised the rent with them!

THE SINGING WORLD

I.
Happy in woodlands,
Sing, birds, sing.
Heralds claiming,
The coming of spring.
As hither and thither
You flit on light wing.

II.
Singing in lowlands,
Where grasses are green,
Spreading their spirals
Bright shades between,
Where the first glimmer
Of spring buds is seen.

III.
Singing on hillside,
Down river banks, too,
Where cowslips and violets
Blossom so blue,
And the twigs and the tendrils
Are trembling with dew.

IV.
Sing, birds, sing
The musical clime
Of sparkling waters
And lyrical rhyme.
While my own heart echoes:
"Springtime, springtime!"

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, May 4.—It had been two months since I strolled along Broadway then the lights were spiraling upward and racing forward. There is always a jound and boisterous vitality to America's wickedest street. It salutes Life with a laugh.

The windows sparkle—windows crammed with cocktail shakers, drop earrings from Paris, kiki bracelets, Garmann marks, amber-topped canes, vests of all hues, perfumes from Egypt and sipping puppets. There are windows where men demonstrate a new shampoo and where ladies dip pralines.

Two months, and there is almost a different Broadway. Near the Winter Garden has bloomed four majestic caterpillars that serve only Chicago for Muscle Shoals.

Four tiny shops have blossomed on the entrance to the Automat. Three new revues have sprouted in the cellars around the corner in Forty-seventh street—three in a row. A gilt automobile with driver and four man bids for the de luxe wax wagon patronage in Longacre square.

Freeman's, the famous café by the Pulitzer theater, where the cats go to take their dogs, is now called Gertie's. A shop where only oranges are sold flaunts in enameled letters on its window puppets. "We prepare your oranges for the cocktail tree."

Nat Lewis, the theatrical laborer, has gobbled up an adjoining building and is now appealing to the ladies with displays of gaudy hosiery and lacey lingerie. Bennie and Max have three one-flight-up tailoring places whereas two months ago they had but one.

There are a hundred and one other changes along the rollicking old street. They are symbolic of Broadway's shifting moods. Even the newswives have changed their pace. Whereas they used to cry their morning editorials and racing forms at 10 o'clock they now cry them lustily at 8.

We sometimes wonder what Booth and Barrett, or even the admirable Otis Skinner, would say about the vicious assaults on the queen's English in New York theaters. There, for instance, is an actor who is billed in 8-foot letters as an "actor of distinction." He takes the part of an erudite author in the play and one of his first lines is: "Don't look at me like I was a ghost."

Now and then we are chided for perpetrating an ancient wheeze in these daily trivialities. The reproach is probably justifiable. Still, in a musical show that charges $8.50 a seat the venerable "Why does a chicken cross the road? To see Flo Ziegfeld" gets the uproarious laugh.

At one of the smart hotels there is a special service for dogs. The other evening a guest rang for a waiter and explained he wanted a bit of food for his dog. The waiter was turned over to the dog chef and a waiter carrying a dog menu arrived. The meal was ordered. When it arrived the guest asked the charge and was told it was 70 cents.

"All right," he said, "tell them to cancel my order for dinner. I'll eat this myself."

The young men who wear those snippy mustaches have added a new touch to their dandyism. They are wearing the shirts with colored collars and cuffs.

HEALTH TALKS
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

WEANING WITHOUT A STRUGGLE.
It is safe to wean a well baby any time after he is 6 months old. It is a serious matter to wean a baby only a month or two old.

Age for weaning is 9 to 10 months. Few American mothers can nurse a baby successfully after 10 months old. No mother should wean her baby under 6 months of age for practical domestic life, are now conducting classes in marksmanship.

"Humph," ejaculated Mrs. Newby, "I should say you would."
"Would what?" inquired Mr. Newby.
"Why," she replied, "this recipe for hard custard says 'SIT on a lot store and stir constantly.'"

Now, Editor, who can a contrib do. When our cleverest critics are backed-need to. Allude to King Tut like the papyrus. And the nine-lived cat! Prepare them for the coming of the new year. Yes, this request I am making of you, I hope you won't deem my verses atrocious.

Connected to wit and of wisdom true, (Prescribe as a drink or a brisk shampoo) Well steeped in the waters that fancy brings. From all Time's fabled and far off springs.

ROBERT A. HEMPHILL'S 76TH BIRTHDAY TODAY

Robert A. Hemphill, prominent citizen of Atlanta, will be 76 years old today.

Mr. Hemphill came to Atlanta from Athens more than a half century ago and has been one of the city's most highly esteemed citizens ever since.

He is one of the pillars of Methodism in Georgia and has always been prominently identified with the church and humanitarian work in the city and state, especially the Decatur, Orphans' Home.

The three last commanders-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans have named Mr. Hemphill to serve as an aide on their respective staffs. This honor has just been conferred upon him again by the new commander-in-chief, General William B. Haldean, of Louisville.

Mr. Hemphill entered the confederate army while a resident of Athens almost as a mere boy, serving with distinction to the end of the war. He and his brother, William A. Hemphill, were born on the same day of the same month and had the latter lived he would have been 81 years old today.

DR. W. G. CLINTON TO BEGIN SERIES OF BIBLE STORIES

Dr. William G. Clinton, pastor of Ponce de Leon Methodist church, will begin two series of sermons Sunday, one to be rendered at the 11 o'clock morning services, on the Book of Genesis, and the other to be at the Sunday evening services, based on stories found in the early chapters of the Book of Genesis. The last series is based on "The beginnings of human history." Following is the text:

May 6, morning, "The man and the prophet;" evening, "The creation story, or the beginning of men and things."
May 12, morning, "The severity of God;" evening, "The serpent story, or how sin came in."
May 20, morning, "Commercial iniquity;" evening, "The first murder story, or how sin grows."
May 27, morning, "The opposing types of religion;" evening, "The floor story, or how sin destroys."
June 3, morning, "Darkness and dawn;" evening, "The Tower of Babel story, or how sin separates."

DR. H. A. PORTER PREPARES LIST OF MAY SERMONS

Dr. Henry Alfred Porter, pastor of Second Baptist church, has prepared a series of sermons for May and June, the general subject to be "Things folks want to know." He prepared the series in response to numerous questions that have been asked by opponents of a proposed appeal, which was announced Friday by the Parent-Teacher association of that school.

Resolutions demanding that Miss Bishop be reinstated were adopted by the association, which announced that it would appeal to East Point city council in the event the demand is denied. A petition, signed by more than 200 school patrons joining in the request, has been filed with the board.

Members of the board of education who failed to reappoint Miss Bishop, electing Mrs. J. R. Campbell as principal of the school, declined to comment on the association's action except to state that Miss Bishop had simply "failed to be re-elected."

ARCHBOLD HOSPITAL FOR THOMASVILLE, GA.

Strictly Modern Institution to Be Memorial to Late Standard Oil Magnate.

Thomasville, Ga., May 4.—The John D. Archbold Memorial hospital to be erected here by John F. Archbold, will be one of the most modern and thoroughly equipped hospitals in the south.

It will be entirely fireproof and will have eighty or more beds and splendid operating equipment. The location has been purchased by Mr. Archbold from H. K. Devereux, on Gordon avenue and Redden street.

This hospital will be for both pay and charity patients, but no profits or dividends shall come to those associated or incorporated in it, everything being used to extend the charity work of the institution.

Mr. Archbold has applied for a charter and incorporated in the petition the names of J. T. Culpepper, H. W. Hopkins, J. H. Merrill and A. D. Little of the board of the city hospital, as it is planned to co-operate with the work of that hospital.

While it is not known just what this memorial hospital will cost, it was probably involve close to a million dollars.

John F. Archbold is one of Thomasville's wealthy winter residents and his father, the Standard Oil magnate, was much interested in this city.

BOND ELECTION IN FORSYTH VOID, SAYS HIGH COURT

A municipal registration must be held before a municipal bond election can be legally conducted, according to a ruling handed down Friday by the state supreme court in deciding an appeal growing out of a proposed bond election of $100,000 in Forsyth, Ga.

The higher court reversed the decision of Judge Searcy, of the Monroe superior court, who held that the election in Forsyth recently held had received the necessary number of votes. In the appeal which was instituted by opponents of the bond issue, it was contended that there had been no special registration as required by law.

TRAINING STATION BACKED STRONGLY

Large Corporations Promise Co-Operation in Absorbing Trainees at Rehabilitation Center.

Washington, May 4.—A complete rehabilitation center will be established by the veterans' bureau at Perryville, Md., under an order signed today by Director Hines.

By utilizing existing government-owned buildings here the cost to the veterans' bureau will be relatively slight and there will be accommodation for approximately 600 trainees and beds for approximately 250 hospital patients.

Director Hines said that this was a step toward co-ordination of all the bureau's training activities for disabled veterans and that wherever in other parts of the country the government has suitable facilities for the establishment of training centers they will be utilized.

The Perryville establishment will have all of the usual training courses, including instruction in related subjects. At Perryville at present there is a new hospital for the hospitalized program and a supply depot for the Atlantic coast.

The government owns a tract of 525 acres there, and Director Hines said he expected to have "the finest farm in the world" there.

Considerable progress is being made, Director Hines said, toward obtaining co-operation of big business in absorbing disabled trainees. He returned today from New York, where he had attended a meeting of the citizens' committee of the merchants' association, of which General Harbord is the chairman.

Assurances of co-operation and employment for trainees have been received from the Westinghouse Air Brake company, the Association of Railway Executives, United States Machine company, Burroughs' Adding Machine company, the Standard Oil company of New York, which is already employing trainees; National Cash Register company, Bethlehem Steel corporation, General Electric company, Underwood Typewriter company, Sears-Roebuck company, Norfolk and Western railway and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

DANGER SIGNALS OF INDIGESTION

The Disease That Strikes Like Lightning.

Beware of indigestion—the disease that kills more people and kills them quicker than any other. This warning, by physicians, is particularly applicable this season of the year, when your system "lets down" in tone and vigor with the first approach of warm weather.

What are the warnings that nature gives you of the approach of indigestion? The medical books tell us: 1. Gas, which means that your food is fermenting instead of digesting. 2. A feeling of fullness or oppression in the region of the stomach after eating. This means that the gas has ballooned your stomach and is pressing up against your heart and lungs. 3. A dull, lazy feeling, which means that you are not getting nourishment from what you are eating. 4. Restlessness, unrefreshing sleep, which means that the poisons of indigestion are disturbing your brain and nerves. 5. Sometimes, pain and fluttering under the heart, though this symptom may come later.

Don't take chances with indigestion—you are too apt to lose. If you have had any of the symptoms mentioned above, get your digestive organs to work at once with Dan-Nax, the greatest prescription that was ever written for a digestive tonic. Dan-Nax immediately aids and assists every one of your digestive organs, including the stomach, liver and bowels. Dan-Nax makes your digestion "perfect and complete." You feel its helpful effect from the very first dose. Get a bottle of Dan-Nax today at any drug store. Dan-Nax is so much superior to any other remedy for indigestion that the manufacturers have instructed every druggist to refund the price if you do not get relief, so it costs you nothing if you are not delighted with results. Delay might be dangerous, get Dan-Nax today.—(adv.)

ASSURANCE SENT TO ATLANTA BANK

done the board will recognize the equity your bank now has in the situation because of the substantial volume of notes it has supplied to Cuba.

This is also recognized by Governor Harding in his amended plan for an agency and full provision will be made in case any agency is authorized to insure that your bank shall be given facilities the same as those existing for the redemption of its unit notes in Cuba and the placing into circulation of new and fit notes as may be required.

"I trust that this information will allay any misgivings as to the purpose and outcome of the hearing to be held next Monday."

OTTELY ENLARGES
ON PREVIOUS STAND.

Setting forth further reasons why the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank should be permitted to retain its Cuban business, John K. Ottey, president of the Fourth National bank, who on Thursday wired Georgia's senators in protest against the proposal to transfer the Cuban business to the Boston federal reserve bank, Friday gave out an interview explaining his stand.

"The Atlanta Federal Reserve bank, of its own initiative, began furnishing currency to Cuba through the Jacksonville branch of the Atlanta bank," he said. "This was done with the approval of the federal reserve board, of which Mr. Harding was then governor. The bank has been the beneficiary of immense benefit to Cuban business and agricultural interests and likewise of great benefit to the business of the Atlanta and Jacksonville in the Atlanta or sixth district."

The proposal to transfer the Cuban business to the Boston bank was recently made by W. P. G. Harding, former head of the federal reserve system, and now governor of the Boston bank.

"Jacksonville is two days nearer to Cuba by mail and express than any other point, and this fact alone makes Jacksonville the logical point through which to supply this requirement of Cuba," Mr. Ottey said.

"The Cuban business built up the Jacksonville branch to such magnitude that a building was needed. The general law is that no branch bank shall have a building which costs in excess of $250,000 without a special act of congress. We had plans made for the building needed by the Jacksonville branch, and found that it would cost $300,000. In order to get a $400,000 building, Mr. Harding, then governor of the board in Washington, took the matter up with members of the banking and currency committee of the house and obtained a special act authorizing a $400,000 building."

"But now Mr. Harding, who is no longer the head of the reserve system as a whole, but the head of the Boston reserve bank, proposes to take the Cuban business away from the Jacksonville branch of the Atlanta bank, and transfer it to his bank in Boston."

"$400,000 Waste Involved."

"If the Cuban business were taken away from the Jacksonville branch there would be no necessity for a $400,000 building, and possibly no necessity for a building at all. The amount of money contracted to be spent for the building would be wasted."

"In the second place, the lending power of the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank would be curtailed about $90,000,000 if the Cuban business were taken away. In other words the Cuban reserves are so large that they give the Atlanta bank an additional lending power of that amount, which it would lose if the Cuban business were shifted to Boston."

"The Atlanta bank serves primarily an agricultural section. It has gone to greater lengths to assist the farmers than any other bank in the system. If the Cuban business is transferred to Boston to gratify the ambition of Mr. Harding, the farmers of this district will be the principal sufferers."

"It would be just as logical for the Atlanta bank to propose to establish an agency in Nova Scotia as for the Boston bank to propose to establish an agency in Cuba."

"There is no southern member of the federal reserve board in Washington just at this moment. George H. James, of Memphis, was appointed a few days ago, but has not yet taken his seat on the board. Probably he will not have been seated by next Monday, the day scheduled for the hearing before the board of Mr. Harding's preposterous proposal. We are, therefore, insisting that the hearing be postponed until Mr. James takes his seat."

ed and persistent following, as he had had in 1920. At the same time he may be able to secure the delegation, certainly in a complimentary sense and possibly in the sense that he may be able, in some degree at least, to direct this big state delegation with relation to the choice of the nominee and to the making of the party platform.

Unique Among Leaders.

In one respect Cox is unique among the democratic leaders. Next to Wilson he is the most courageous and the most outstanding advocate of the league of nations. If he were free to speak his heart, he would probably not say that he is necessarily for the league in the exact form that Wilson wrote it. But he is in favor of America's co-operation with other nations for the preserving of peace in the spirit of the league of nations, to a greater degree than any other one democratic leader of his rank. The place that Cox will have in the next democratic national convention will depend a good deal on what kind of platform the convention will adopt with reference to foreign relations.

SWEETSER'S TEST ALL COME IN FIRST ROUND AT DEAL

Noel Layton Will Oppose American Amateur Champ; Style to Help Sweetser

Walter Hagen Says It Is Hard to Conceive Of Jess Having as Hard Time as He Had in Amateur Tourney.

BY WALTER HAGEN.

(British Open Champion and Correspondent of The Constitution and of the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

If Jess Sweetser, the American champion, survives the first round at Deal he will find the rest of the journey fairly easy. The luck of the draw has placed Jess and Noel Layton, a strong English player, opposite each other in the initial round.

It hardly seems possible that young Sweetser will be called upon to face as many stars as he did at Brookline last September. Golfers will remember that he started off his tourney with Willie Hunter and then broke the heart of the champion, Jess Guiford, following up this splendid victory with one even greater over Bobby Jones. Last but not least, he beat Chick Evans in the final.

Jess played the roll of Jack the Giant Killer to perfection and established himself as a champion who not only possesses a sound game but unusual courage. I am a great admirer of Sweetser, who undoubtedly has more of the fighting spirit in him than any non-sportsman I have known.

Jerry Travers used to win big titles with sheer grit and determination. STARTED AS A BOY WONDER.

Time was when Sweetser was not nearly so good as he is today, although he was heralded as another boy wonder. Carl Anderson was the first golfer that I ever heard rave about the boy's golf. He told me in three words his work at North Shore when I won the Metropolitan title three years ago. I was not so impressed with his game then and when I saw him later at Oakmont—the famed golfing—I noticed that he was not yet a finished player.

Jess had a rather high malleable back which he held in a way that was uncertain at its best. He did not master the back spin shot at the time and was just pitching the ball up with what he called the ascending shot. When it hit the green it rolled quite a little. A year later, at the Engineers' club, Jess had improved on this shot 50 per cent, but when he played his wooden clubs I thought that he stood with his feet a little too close together.

The last time I played with Jess was at New Haven last fall in an exhibition. He had the faults and his drive was beautifully timed and pleasing thing to watch. Jess' style has changed for the better and now that he has coupled this with experience he should not fear any man in the tournament field.

STRENGTHENS CHANCES. Sweetser's style is rather compact, which gives him a better chance on a wind-swept course than if it was loose and wide open. His malleable approach is low enough now to obtain any results desired on keen greens.

Believe that Jess will adapt himself to conditions at Deal as quickly as anyone and I would not be surprised to see him drop the back spin shot the very first time he plays on the green. The golfer who uses the back spin sparingly on this course will obtain the best results. A run-up shot is far more valuable and quite as easy to make. The rough is a necessity on the most inland courses but there is precious little need for one on a seaside links, where the club is apt to play fast at any time. The greens at Deal are mostly where nature put them, in the hollows, and where they can be easily reached without having to pitch over a sand trap or through a rough.

Not afraid of distance. Sweetser is not a player that would be inclined to balk at playing 10 holes. Jess believes that he can play over the shorter route as well as his opponent, and this is the proper way to look at the situation.

Tommy Armour, the Scotch player, was loud in his praise of Sweetser's first opponent at Deal. He thinks that the Englishman is likely to stop our champion if anyone does so. The American players did as well as might have been expected in the draw. They are fairly well strung out, but there is the possibility of our men having to play each other if they progress very far in the tournament. There would be no such thing as R. E. Holderness, the present champion, meeting our champion in the final as both are in the same half of the draw. Gardner, Wright and Heron are also in this half.

Roger Wethered and Cyril Toller, two golfers always to be considered, are in the top half with Oulmet, Wilkin, Rotan and others of our entourage.

SPALDING TO OPEN TODAY

The Spalding league opens up on May 4, 1923, with the Knights of Columbus team, headed by Jim LaFitte, is going to make a strong bid for the championship this year. J. S. Florentine, manager of the Trinity Methodist club, is a very strong contender. His players consist of members of his Sunday school class. The Gordon Street Baseball club has a team of players, a good team, as usual. Mr. Stevens, of the Proctor & Gamble club, is willing to wager on his team for the championship. O'Neil, of the Exposition Cotton Mills, states he has the fastest team that the mill has ever put out. This is the first year the United States Railway Mail Service has not a team in any of the city leagues. Mr. Purcell, who is managing this club, claims that nothing will satisfy him but the Spalding league championship.

BRITISH TAKING GOLF DEFEAT NICELY

London, May 4.—(By The Associated Press.)—The fact that an American golfer has carried home the trophy from the British Open golf tournament is received without resentment and with some generous recognition of the superiority of the transatlantic players by the London newspaper. The loss of the trophy and Britain's defeat, of course, are lamented, but no excuses are made for the British failure. In fact, the London papers are in for open outspoken criticism of the British players.

"Decisive," "splendid," "well merited" are among the adjectives applied by the critics to the triumph of the overseas visitors, whose success, some of the experts believe, augurs ill for the amateur championship next week. There is no sort of excuse to be made for our players. They had their chances and they played them down disappointingly," says the golf expert of The Times. The Morning Post says editorially: "Plainly, our friends, the British, have lost anything to learn from us; and equally plainly, we have something to learn from them. What the American amateur of the highest class seems to possess in a degree not altogether rivaled and perhaps insufficiently cultivated in this country, is a steadiness that the best professionals could hardly improve upon."

MARIETTA TEAM TO PLAY DALLAS CLUB

Marietta, Ga., May 4.—(Special.)—The Marietta baseball team, which is one of the strongest amateur teams in the state, will play Dallas on the Dallas diamond Saturday, May 5. The Marietta boys have played two games this season with a standing of 1,000, with a score of 17 to 7 in favor of Marietta, and the second game was with the Knights of Columbus, of Atlanta, which is supposed to be the strongest of the amateur teams. This was a game well worth seeing, with a final score of 1 to 0 in favor of the Marietta team.

Game Postponed.

Columbia, S. C., May 4.—Announcement was made today by the Columbia club of the S. C. league that the game next Monday between Columbia and Augusta has been postponed because of a game between the University of South Carolina and College of Charleston set for the same date. The Columbia-Augusta game will be played off as part of a double-header next Wednesday.

GIANTS WIN OPENER.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 4.—New York won the opening game of the series from Philadelphia today, May 4, 13 to 10. In the second innings the Giants hit a circuit drive with three on bases and Williams hit his seventh home run of the season. The visitors tied the score in the third, when Frisch singled and scored on Young's double. Young took third on the bases and scored on a wild pitch by Hubbell.

Wet Grounds Halt Tech-North Carolina Game

Only One Game Will Be Played Today, Beginning at 3 O'Clock—Enloe May Pitch.

Games Postponed. Rain caused a postponement of all games on the morning schedule of Friday afternoon. The games, according to the rules of the prep league, will have to be played some time next week as the season ends Friday, and all games are to be played when the season officially closes.

All next week will be check full of prep baseball for regular season. The games of Friday and Saturday are to be played, plus the postponed schedule of yesterday and today. There are three tied games that they have had in years. But when they hit the far south, something or other the men just could not get together. But they have started now. And is up to Tech to stop the boys before they go too far in this game-winning business.

U. S. OLYMPIC OUTLOOK BAD. New York, May 4.—(By The Associated Press.)—The fact that the judicial controversy between the amateur athletic union and the National Collegiate Athletic association, which broke yesterday, will jeopardize the 1924 American Olympic team, was expressed today by followers of athletics.

Not only is the dispute, which centers around Charlie Paddock, California's star hurdler, but a trouble maker for the Olympic committee but as a wedge of the international preparations that may drive away the amateur and the collegiate athletic authorities of Europe, which may hurt their Olympic teams.

Brigadier General Palmer P. Pierce, president of the N. C. A. A., in support of Paddock's stand, has issued orders of the A. A. U. intimating that collegiate athletic authorities of the world may organize an Olympic team independent of the A. A. U. renewal planned for Paris next year.

The break came last night when Frederick W. Ruben, national secretary of the A. A. U., announced that the A. A. U. automatically lost amateur recognition and that organization by defying it. It was not until this statement came, however, that it was known the N. C. A. A. supported Paddock's stand.

The A. A. U. ruling also has antagonized the women's swimming association of New York which intended to permit Gertrude Ederle, Olympic champion, to compete in the British Isles this year. The A. A. U. banned the proposal.

SIXTH CAVALRY TO START POLO SEASON. Anniston, Ala., May 4.—(Special.)—Picked teams from the Sixth cavalry regiment, which arrived from Fort Oglethorpe over a week ago for temporary duty at the Camp McClellan, will stage the initial polo game of the season at the camp on Sunday afternoon.

Polo fans and promoters among the officers and men of the Sixth cavalry are arranging a series of games to be played during the time the regular army men are stationed here and it is expected that an unusual amount of enthusiasm will be shown by local people in the sport program for the summer months.

May Enter Meet. Griffin, Ga., May 4.—There is a possibility that Griffin athletes will compete in the national field and track meet, according to announcements here. Coach Talcott, general chairman of the Griffo Athletic commission of the University of Chicago, to enter a team. The meet is to be held at Chicago May 25-26.

MOREHOUSE TEAM WILL PLAY TODAY. The Morehouse Tigers will close the baseball season this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in a double-header with the famous 24th Infantry aggregation, veterans of San Juan Hill, now stationed at Camp Benning.

Their evidence in baseball the same "fighting spirit" that won for them honor and distinction on the field of battle and are a hard bunch of fellows to beat. Both teams divided a two-game series in Columbus.

To Erect New Park. Juliette, Ga., May 4.—(Special.)—A new athletic park has just been completed at Big Spring near McDonough at a cost of several thousand dollars. Baseball games and other athletic events will be held there this summer and money is being raised to equip the park as an ideal place for picnics, barbecues and other recreations. A movement has been started to erect a high school building on the hill north of the spring.

American League

BALLY WINS FOR PHILADELPHIA.

New York, May 4.—Late inning rallies by the Philadelphia Americans enabled them to defeat New York today in a ten-inning game, 8 to 6. McDougall's home run in the ninth tied the score for Philadelphia, and his single in the tenth drove in Hauser and Miller with the winning runs. Both slightly injured his left arm when he fell over a board fence in right field, tumbling completely out of the playing field. Galloway, of Philadelphia, injured a leg on the same play, trying to stretch his hit into a triple. Both men remained in the game.

YOUNG STRIBLING LOSES DECISION TO CARBONE

Aggressiveness, Coupled With Cunning of Older Boxer, Wears Down Youth

Blow to Stomach in Third Round Paves Way For New Yorker's Victory.

Stribling's Rally Fails.

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

The cunning and the ruggedness that are born of experience enabled Frankie Carbone, New York middleweight, to defeat Young Stribling, Macon youngster, in ten rounds of rough milling last night at the Auditorium. It was Stribling's first loss in an Atlanta ring since Battling Budd was given a verdict more than a year ago.

Strength-sapping body blows whipped into Stribling's stomach paved the way for Carbone's triumph. The Maconian's downfall began in the third round when he was caught asleep at the switch, Carbone lashing a hard right into his younger opponent's abdomen and despite Stribling's courageous rally toward the half-way mark, he never fully recovered from the effects of this blow.

Stribling gradually lost his strength through the steady and accuracy of Carbone's shots to the body. In the seventh Stribling's good work at long range gave him a brief respite from the punning, but in the eighth Carbone returned to his business-like work of wearing down the enemy and in the tenth Stribling was given a pasting that left no doubt in Referee Kaliska's mind that the easterner was entitled to the decision.

Carbone, making his initial appearance before Atlanta fans, made a most impressive showing, save that he is inclined to resort to tactics that are questionable to say the least. If Frankie does away with his tendency to hit low, there is no question that he will prove a tremendous drawing card in this section.

Is Very Aggressive.

He is attacking all night and gives his opponent few moments in which to rest. He is "on his men" from the start of a round until the close and while not leading all the time, Carbone gives the impression that he is ready for a slugging stuff whenever the other side wants to play this game.

Carbone carried the fight to Stribling in practically every round. When he set out to do this at the start of the fight, critics who have watched Stribling fight for years put it down that the New Yorker was in for a beating, but they had not figured that Carbone was one of the toughest propositions that has headed this way in months. Nor had it dawned on them that Frankie would take everything Stribling had, and then bore in for more, biding his time until the opposition was ready for the finishing blows.

If Carbone had a knockout punch he wouldn't be in the sound picking up whatever he can get on a percentage basis. He'd be listening to the walls of the fighters clamoring for bouts with the champion, for Carbone would be just that. The only weapon he doesn't possess is a finisher. This deposit will testify that Carbone has everything necessary to prepare the way for knockouts.

It was only because Stribling was in wonderful condition that he stuck the distance. That, and because he had determined he would stick to his guns until his last shell had been spent. It was in the ninth round that the kid fired his last piece of ammunition and his efforts in the tenth were confined to warding off a vicious attack that threatened to leave the youngster stretched out, taking the long count.

Stribling attempted to use every trick he carries in his bag. A shift in which he feints with his right and then shoots a left worked once, but after that foxy old Carbone was never caught napping. When he saw that Carbone was not to be caught with this again, Stribling turned to inside fighting and soon discovered that he had at last met his equal in strength. Then the Macon kid tried jabbing, using his left for this purpose and whipping over a right when opportunity presented itself. It was at these times that Stribling did his most effective work. He resorted to this style in the first and was winning until a low blow caused Stribling to lose his temper and he tossed away all instructions, tearing into the opposition like a wild man.

That Stribling has lots to learn about his profession and that he is not yet ready for the stern opposition Atlanta fans insist he must meet were features brought out. He endeavored to fight a rough, tough customer at the rough, tough customer's own game and lost.

The cry that the Macon youngster is unwilling to meet top-notchers, that he is afraid to meet a superior fighter, having a chance to defeat him must cease. In his last stints in Atlanta Stribling went against the best mid-weights in the business and came out creditably in both instances. A draw with Jackie Clarke and loss of decision to Frankie Carbone—not bad for a kid who was fighting as a lightweight less than three years ago.

Was Slightly Stale.

He was possibly a bit stale last night. He has been fighting too frequently of late and so much ring action isn't good for a youngster, especially when he is faced with the prospect of fighting such a man as Frankie Carbone. That Stribling was not on his best edge is simply supposition on our part. Carbone is a match for him were Stribling in the best condition of his young life.

Carbone was plainly worried by the fact that Stribling was not on his best edge. He "pumped" into his face and was still more mystified when the Maconian crossed with a right that hit twice in this round and might have won on a foul had he elected to take up the matter with the referee. As was Carbone, who was warned by Kaliska, and the crowd sent forth a mild barrage of raspberry.

In the second round Carbone squared accounts by good use of lefts to Stribling's body, but it was not until the third that he sent over the blow that threatened for an instant to end the affair. The boys had been in a clinch and had separated, Stribling could rig up a defense, Carbone brought up a short right that landed squarely in the center of Stribling's stomach. The youngster gasped, bent over and was apparently on the verge of going down when he straightened up. He limped through the rest of the round and looked worried during the remainder.

Carbone Wins Fourth. In the fifth Stribling succeeded in keeping Frankie at a distance and regaining some of the lost territory. He jabbed in the orthodox fashion with his snaky left and put across at least one good right. But the sixth was put in Carbone's column. In the seventh Stribling again used his left in the correct fashion and looked to be on the road to at least a draw.

But Carbone's fine work in the eighth put a stop to Stribling's rally and from that time on it was the New Yorker's fight. The ninth and tenth rounds falling into his column. Referee Kaliska's decision was well received by the fans.

The preliminaries were unusually good. In the semi-whip Hollis Sullivan apparently had Harry Allen, of Macon, on the verge of a knockout in the second, but the visiting battler rallied sharply and though he lost the decision after eight rounds of great fighting, Harry made many friends by his splendid comeback.

The first round was even, but Sullivan won the second, third and fourth, taking a commanding lead. In the fifth Harry started his comeback and piled up some points. Allen fought furiously to open the sixth, but a hard right caught him on the chin and he went down, not taking a count, however. Sullivan followed up this advantage by thoroughly enjoying the customers. Fritz Jones, of Macon, and Bury Knox scrapped six rounds to a draw and Tommy Jones, of Macon, stopped Young Collins in less than fifty seconds of the first round, a right to the jaw bringing the fight to an abrupt close. Collins went down once before taking the final tumble.

Eddie Wallace, of Douglas, Ga., and Sailor Vinson fought a six-round draw. This bout was thoroughly enjoyed by the customers. They are George Sisler, Jake Daubert and Charley Hollocher. Sisler is recovering from an operation on his eyes, declared necessary by physicians to restore clear vision. His sight was affected by a sinus infection believed to be the result of an attack of influenza last winter.

The wonder first baseman and main spring of the St. Louis Browns says bravely that he will return to the game within a month or two, but his closest friends aren't so optimistic. Sisler is recovering from an operation on his eyes, declared necessary by physicians to restore clear vision. His sight was affected by a sinus infection believed to be the result of an attack of influenza last winter.

Just when 74,000 people have called in on Babe Ruth to watch him whack out his first home run of the season, seems an inopportune time to mark a decline of interest in baseball. But an attendance of 74,000 at a professional ball game or of 90,000 at a professional fight doesn't mean that the 74,000 or the 90,000 were interested primarily in baseball or boxing. It means they were interested in the drama of those professional sports.

There were only 6,000 people at the New York Yankees' eighth game of the season which presented a more even matching of strength and the likelihood of a better contest. You'll find sometimes as few as 100 customers at a small fight club where the bouts are more bitterly fought and more bloody than the one between Dempsey and Carpentier.

We were talking to some editors from various representative sectors of the country a while ago and we asked them what was the principal participating sport—where they came from. "Oh, golf, of course," they said, confirming the belief of six sporting editors from six far-flung cities whom we asked the same question last fall that Angus MacNabick of Scotland has taken on his final papers in America. "Everybody else plays tennis. The rest go to ball-games."

Names of Three Vets Are Missing In Big League Box Scores So Far

BY NORMAN E. BROWN. While the major league teams are fighting the first groups of battles which already give promise that the 1933 campaign is going to be so hot you can't lay the baseball extras on the Missus' new table, three tried and true vets of the big show are sitting alone and quietly cursing their luck at being out of the game through illness or injury.

They are George Sisler, Jake Daubert and Charley Hollocher. Sisler is recovering from an operation on his eyes, declared necessary by physicians to restore clear vision. His sight was affected by a sinus infection believed to be the result of an attack of influenza last winter.

He is on the way back to health now, but it's a long journey—the ones who have had it will tell you. Hollocher's case was equally startling and sudden. He joined the team at the University of Georgia, private island of Catalina and was getting into form when he was taken ill. An infection of the gall bladder is said to have been the cause. He was sent to his home in St. Louis and just in time. Since then he has been waging an uphill battle. Everett Scott, world's most constant player, almost joined the list of crippled veterans. Just before the big gong rang Scott injured his leg and it looked as though he would be unable to play in the opener. But it wasn't broken or cut off so Scott played.

Other stars of more or less brilliancy suffered various and assorted injuries and mishaps in the training season or the winter months before it but somehow got back into shape again.

The season won't be recognized as being in full blast, however, until the Messrs. Sisler, Daubert and Hollocher don their monkey suits again. Atlanta Pulls Great Rally As Battle Draws to Close, But Pelicans Win by 11-8

Dowd Takes the Lead In Cracker Assault, Having Perfect Day With Willow. Gets Double With Bases Loaded.

New Orleans, La., May 4.—(Special.)—That belated train ride of Thursday did not affect the fielding qualities of the Atlanta Crackers. At least, there was no train ride today. It was through Babe Herman's palpable errors, and the ones he made Killinger and Niehaus commit through his inability to catch anything but a ball which was thrown right in his mitt that the Pelicans eased an 11 to 8 triumph over the Crackers.

Eddie Matteson almost tossed away the game, which was thus presented to him, but when things had gone so far Larry Gilbert rushed "Buzzer" Bill Whitaker into the arena and the day was saved.

Pitchers Unsteady. What with the fielding being as loose as aspies, Pitchers Niehaus, Llewellyn and Dumont, who shouldered the mound work for Atlanta, were unsteady and ineffective, and that's why the birds were able to make 11 runs on 12 hits, while Atlanta picked up only 9 runs with 16 safeties.

Otto Miller himself pulled a good one when he started the comedy of errors by miffing a third strike on Larry Gilbert and Gilbert went to first after Bogart went out in the first inning. A single by Dowd, an infield out and Herman's clean bingle to left, had given Atlanta a run in the first, and Otto probably felt charitable.

Anyhow, Ewoldt crashed a single to left and Gilbert went to second. Tucker hit toward first, Herman's stilly legs wrapped around each other and he stood just behind the bag to field the pill, which rolled easily along, hit the pillow and bounded away. It went for a scratch hit, and ended the inning. Niehaus was peevish and walked Knaupp, scoring in Gilbert. Foss hit to deep left, Ewoldt easily scoring on the catch, Clanton lined out to short.

Unable to Hit Matteson. The Crackers could do nothing with Matteson in their third inning. While the Pelicans, after being turned back in their second, took advantage of outside help and paraded around the paths in their third, Gilbert beat out a single to Killinger and took second when Killinger's wide throw got past Herman. Ewoldt hit to Niehaus, whose wide throw also got by Herman, Knaupp going to third. Tucker, Dumont, winning pitcher, Matteson; losing pitcher, Llewellyn. Umpires, McGowan, and Williams. Time of game, 2:10.

No Other Games Played in Southern League. St. Louis, May 4.—Ray Grimes first baseman of the Chicago Nationals, was injured in the fourth inning of yesterday's game here and will be out of the game indefinitely, it was announced last night. Grimes suffered an injury to his spine in sliding into home.

RAY GRIMES INJURED IN BASEBALL GAME. It is believed Grimes dislocated the vertebrae which gave him considerable trouble last year. This is the second serious blow to the Chicago team this year. Charles Hollocher, regular shortstop, who has been unable to play this year, departed for New York last night on instructions from President Weck, of the Chicago team, to consult several specialists.

Condition Serious. Spartanburg, S. C., May 4.—The condition of J. A. Batson, shortstop on the Wofford college baseball team, who was hit on the head by a pitched ball here on April 27, is very grave today, it was announced by Dr. Hugh Black, who performed an operation on Batson's brain yesterday.

Snipes, University of South Carolina pitcher, threw the ball which struck Batson's head. The blow was considered trivial at first, but a blood clot developed on the brain yesterday morning.

O'DOWD LOSES TO C. WILSON

Columbus, Ga., May 4.—Clay Wilson, of Birmingham, was awarded a judge's decision over Tim O'Dowd, of Atlanta, in a ten-round boxing contest here tonight. The men are bantamweights.

Signs Up Pitchers. Memphis, Tenn., May 4.—James Bird, last season with the Shreveport club of the Texas league and McGrew, formerly with the Washington Americans, both pitchers, have been signed by the Memphis club of the southern association, Thomas R. Watkins, club president announced today. Bird is a left hander and McGrew a right hander.

Ejected From Game. Cleveland, May 4.—First Baseman McManus of the St. Louis Americans, was ejected from today's game by Umpire Hildebrand, after McManus had grabbed the umpire, bumped him and took a half swing at him when Hildebrand called McManus out at the plate on a close decision in the fourth inning.

AUBURN GAME IS POSTPONED

Auburn, Ala., May 4.—(Special.)—The Auburn game this afternoon was postponed because of wet grounds. Two games will be played tomorrow. One will be played in the morning and the other in the afternoon.

RUMORS SAID TO BE FALSE. Detroit, Mich., May 4.—The statement sent out recently from Ann Arbor that the Michigan basketball team was scheduled to play the University of Wisconsin at the University of Wisconsin, was misleading, according to T. E. Jones, director of physical education of the University of Wisconsin.

Under that agreement two teams will meet in basketball three years in succession, but each conference team will meet three teams on its year's schedule and three new teams each year. Home and home games are played in basketball instead of alternating as in football.

Under that agreement two teams will

Mrs. Price Gilbert Honors Mrs. Hickey at Luncheon

Mrs. James Hickey, who has recently returned from an extended wedding journey through California, was the guest of honor at a brilliant luncheon given Friday by Mrs. Price Gilbert at the Piedmont Driving club. The table was arranged in the shape of a large horseshoe, guests being seated on both sides of the table, which was covered with rare cloths of filet lace. At intervals were placed French baskets filled with enlaid garden flowers in pastel shades and including iris, peonies, tulips, snapdragons and corn flowers. The handles were tied with fluffy bows of white and gold chiffon ribbon. Trailing sprays of asparagus plumage interspersed

Mrs. Roberts Opens Press Quarters at 80 Marietta St.

Press headquarters for the Atlanta council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and for the press department of the Atlanta Woman's club have been established by Mrs. McCord Roberts, press chairman for the woman's club and local representative on the national press department of the general federation, at 80 Marietta street, on the second floor, and all equipment for carrying on the large volume of business connected with this department at the annual meetings has been installed.

Visiting press representatives are asked to call and receive credentials entitling them to seats at the press table, and Mrs. Roberts requests all members of the Woman's club wishing information or assistance through this department to note that the telephone number is listed "Mrs. McCord Roberts, press headquarters, 80 Marietta street." The number is Walnut 1027.

BEAUTY CHATS BY EDNA K. FORBES

HOW PERFUMES ARE MADE

Anyone with romantic ideas about the making of perfumes—ideas probably gathered from pictures of barefooted women waist deep in sunny fields of flowers—would be disillusioned could she watch the actual manufacturing processes. For the ordinary way of extracting the scent of a flower, at least in France, is to crush the frail and lovely blossoms in quantities of beef suet or other meat fats, until the whole is a greasy, dark, ugly, badly smelling cake. This goes by the pretty name of "enfleurage."

This is because fats readily absorb odors, the actual fat later on can be treated with alcohol and the perfume separated from it. But the first step in making perfume is never as the thetic. Of course, lately we've been finding that the most lovely flower odors exist in coal tar, and presently, perhaps, the whole system of crushing flowers under hydraulic presses, evaporating, sterilizing, etc., will be antiquated. Flowers won't enter into it at all. Cheap scents and handkerchief perfumes are now made from heliotropin, cumarin, vanillin, nerolin, terpinol and such things, mixed with alcohol and a trace of musk.

Who would fancy that acetic acid, with the slightest bit of clove oil, produces the delicious fresh smell of strawberries? Lavender oil and an alcoholic solution of guaiacum (a shrub that grows in the West Indies, much used in medicine) gives the odor of popular buds bursting in the spring, a delicious smell, as anyone fond of country walks knows. The scent of lilies of the valley is made from ylang-ylang, and those little spicy, caramellike gold in many grocery shops; rose oil with patchouli gives the famous "white rose" perfume with musk it becomes "moss rose." Eau de Cologne is one part neroli oil to 100 parts of alcohol.

An oil of violets is made from such unflowerlike things as acetone, citral, calcium chloride and ferrie chloride.

Jeanette—I will be glad to mail you a diet chart and directions for reducing, but it will take too much space to print. Send a stamped addressed envelope if you wish this information.

Sue—A girl of 18, five feet one and a half inches, will be normal weight at 110 pounds.

Brown Eyes—If you drank vinegar it would make you ill so it could not be used to any extent for reduction.

Margie—A good blood purifier at this season is a tea made from the roots of dandelion, yellowdock and burdock. All of these may be purchased at the drug stores. A wine glassful three times each day is the

Bird Protection Will Be Featured At Howard Matinee

An Audubon society pin will admit any girl or boy free to the Saturday matinee at the Howard theater this week, for the matinee is to feature bird protection, and every part of the program will follow in some way this idea.

There are 1,400 members of the Audubon society in the Atlanta public schools, and they will all be admitted free to wear their Audubon pins to the Howard.

Three Tech High boys, Charles Grant, James Foote and George Dorsey, will give bird calls in imitation of various well known birds and others not quite so familiar, but whose calls are very beautiful. These boys are under direction of Miss Mattie Rainwater, who is in charge of nature study in public schools.

Another delightful feature of this unique program will be the "dance of the crows." A group of school girls under direction of Mrs. W. P. Beehan will dance this charming number from the "House that Jack Built."

The picture for Saturday are all good. There will be a Navini film showing birds of crags and marshes. This glimpse into the wilds where feathered friends not generally known to domesticated folks build their queer nests will be a treat for bird lovers.

A Pathe Comedy.

The comedy for this week is a Pathe cartoon, "The Man Who Laughed."

By courtesy of Howard Kingsmore, the Saturday morning crowd will have the opportunity of seeing the Einstein theory of relativity, which is an interesting and instructive picture.

An outstanding feature will be invitations which will be given to the children. These invitations are to the mothers of the children inviting them to attend the next Saturday matinee at the Howard—for next Saturday is national mothers' day.

At the Alpha.

The usual good features of the Alpha theater matinees will be carried out this week with three pictures featuring popular stars. "The Wagon of Doom," the fifth episode of "The Oregon Trail," starring Art. Acord, will be shown. This is a consolidated film. There will be a two-reel western drama with Leo Maloney, called "100 Per Cent Nerve." Pathe. Another feature will be the Consolidated film, "Smarty," in which Buddy Messinger stars.

Mrs. W. P. Lemmon, chairman of chaparrons, announces that on duty at the Howard will be Mrs. W. J. Agnew and Mrs. Ellis Barrett. At the Alpha, Mrs. G. H. Guy, co-chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. W. C. Milan.

Miss Swinson Weds Andrew C. Willson.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Solar, of 787 East North avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Dava Solar Swinson, to Andrew C. Willson. The marriage was performed Thursday afternoon, May 3, by Dr. E. F. Dempsey at his apartment in the Colonades.

not blur or tarnish for many months, even though exposed to weather conditions.

More Flavor.

If preserved fruit is opened an hour or two before it is used it will be much richer in flavor. After the oxygen of the air has been restored to preserve the fruit the flavor is greatly improved.

To Straighten Them.

Aluminum pans do not require so much heat as other ware and excess heat frequently causes them to bulge in places. Heat them slowly and these bulged places can be hammered back into shape.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Prevents Soggy Crust.

If you are afraid the soft filling of your pie will sink into the bottom crust and make it soggy, brush the crust thoroughly with white of egg before putting in the filling.

A New Spool.

So often a new spool of cotton will tangle when used on the sewing machine. Cut a piece of cloth larger than the spool and put on the post under the spool. It will keep it steady.

They Shine On.

One woman I know gives her door knobs a thin coat of colorless varnish after she has polished them. They do shine.

Of Those Who Have Been Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I had a bad pain in my left side and I could not lift anything heavy without having a backache. I tried to do a lot of things, but they were all in vain. Then I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers and began taking it as the directions said. I feel very good now and can do all my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to all my friends, and you can use my testimonial letter."—Mrs. HATTIE WARREN, 870 Garden St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Gained in Every Way

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I had some female troubles that just run my health down so that I lost my appetite and felt miserable all the time. I could not lift anything heavy, and a little extra work some days would put me in bed. A friend had told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I gained in every way, could eat better and felt stronger. I had found nothing before this that did me so much good."—Mrs. J. GRACE, 291 Wolts Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

WHITE DIARRHEA IN BABY CHICKS

Put this in the drinking water and stop it in 48 hours.

Most people lose half of every hatch, and soon to expect it. Chick cholera, or white diarrhea, is the cause.

An Avicol tablet in the drinking water will save your chicks from all such diseases. Within 48 hours the sick ones will be lively as crickets.

Mrs. Wm. May, Rego, Ind., writes: "I was losing 10 or 15 chicks a day from diarrhea before I received the Avicol. I haven't lost one since."

It costs nothing to try Avicol. Use it for preventing or treating white diarrhea and all bowel diseases of poultry. If not satisfied, your money promptly refunded. Sold by your local dealer, or send for package by mail prepaid (or $1 for large size holding 2½ times as much). Burrell-Dugger Co., 214 Columbia Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

JIL-BETT

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

She married yesterday, and has gone with her young husband across the seas. You have just passed their boat, and it is bound for America."

General Mudge instantly recalled the incident of the passing of the other boat: how darkened, and a gleam not wanting to be flashed into his eyes was a man who could conceal his emotions, hold them in leash. In a moment whose calmness surprised even himself, he asked Mudge to come out and tell him all about it, adding he would make it worth while to lose his sleep for the next half-hour or so.

CHAPTER XXXI
Mudge complied with alacrity, and together they sat down on the oil weather-beaten doorstep. Slowly Mudge spoke: "First of all, may I ask, who are you, and know why you are so very anxious to know all the business of the Bannocks?"

"Certainly: I am only too anxious to give you that information. I represent a firm who was anxious to secure Bannock's services on a delicate piece of work. I consulted him about it and he consented to do the job for us. I am here to settle with him regarding it. Of course, his sudden demise—er—ends the transaction. I must find the granddaughter, to learn how the arrangement was concluded. It is but courteous and right that I communicate with her, you know."

This explanation satisfied Mudge, who had no knowledge of the real state of affairs.
By adroit questioning, Mudge learned all they knew in Katar concerning the marriage performed at midnight, and of their arrangement to leave Katar by the first boat that should stop there, taking passage upon her, no matter where her destination.

When Mudge began a recital, he never knew when to stop. He ended by describing to Staples how Jil-Bett's heart ached at leaving Katar, and of how she went down in her diving suit the morning she was to leave, not only to view the pearls, but to bring up a little black box that she kept there containing her little trinkets, thinking the ocean's bed so very safe for her treasures.

Staples sat up listening intently. There was little in the conversation of much interest until he heard about the little black box of trinkets along with her. "Did she take the little black box of trinkets along with her? I wonder that she did not open the box before you all and distribute its contents among her friends."

"No; women do not give away the trinkets that have been dear to them in other days. The last we saw of Jil-Bett she was standing on the deck with her little black box clasped close in her arms."

Staples pursued his inquiries along different lines, but could elicit no further information. Rising, Staples abruptly bade his companion "Good-night," thanking him for letting him know of the demise of Bannock, etc. As he strode hastily away, in search of a place to spend the night, he cogitated long and earnestly over all he had found out.

"It resolves itself into this," he muttered: "on the death of the old lady, the girl and her lover married hastily. The ruby and the gold, in all probability, was in that little box. Knowing I was soon to return for it, and aware of its great value, they have decamped for parts unknown. What a contretemps! What will my manager, Hale, say? To think of all places, they should set sail for America!"

Staples was up bright and early the next morning. The first thing he did was to ascertain if the Dolphin made any stops between Katar and New York. He was intensely relieved to learn she did not.

His next step was to visit the government officials of Katar to secure extradition papers to bring the girl Jil-Bett back, providing she was not, by that time, beyond their jurisdiction.

This international theft case, wherein such a great sum was represented, and in which little Jil-Bett, whom they had known so long and loved so well, was involved, caused much excitement among the officials. To a man their sympathies seemed to be with Jil-Bett.

"A man is a fool to expect justice in such a case," Staples ruminated. He realized, by their excuses for delay, their intention to aid, as it were, Jil-Bett, by permitting her to get beyond the point where they could have caused her return, though their government boat, the fastest ocean greyhound on the coast, lay idly at anchor there.

Staples' next procedure was to send a wireless message to Manager Hale, which was as follows: "Arrest girl Jil-Bett on way to New York on Dolphin. Ruby in her possession. I follow on next boat."

"(Signed) STAPLES."
This message caused no end of consternation at Liffany's.

"The gem stolen!" Hale cried in consternation. "Heavens! what a predicament!" In that moment he heavily rejoiced that no receipt had been given the owner of the ruby whereby they could be held responsible for its loss.

In connection with it, said owner had made no inquiry whatever as to the progress that was being made with the work.

"Most uncanny, all the way through," was Hale's comment.

He lost no time in notifying the police. Officers were assigned to watch for the incoming Dolphin and apprehend the girl on her arrival.

There was one point over which the police confessed they were not a little puzzled, and that was, as to why the girl was flying to America of all places. Older and wiser heads on the force took a different view.

It showed extraordinary cunning, they argued; America was the last place one would think of looking for her. She must know that every other point would be thoroughly combed, therefore took refuge under the very nose of those searching for her. They had no description of the girl, therefore it would be necessary to send a man out to board the steamer at quarantine. There was not likely to be but one person with that odd name, Jil-Bett, on board. They had no information of a husband accompanying her, and expected to find a young woman traveling alone.

Manager Hale, despite the no receipt part of it, felt responsible for the gem, and its recovery.

A full complement of officers were on hand on the morning the boat was scheduled to land; great was their surprise when Jack did not put in an appearance, nor was any word received from her.

A little later they learned she had met with a disturbance at sea—further information was not forthcoming.

Hale hurried down to the shipping company's office.

"A disturbance at sea, what do they mean by that?" he demanded. The men in charge of the office were quite as mystified as he.

"Some of the crew may have mutinied," suggested one. "The captain is a very harsh man, I understand, and none too well liked by the crew that shipped with him. It takes very little to create a disturbance among a bunch of seafaring men, especially if they make up their minds to celebrate. It's the captain's business to nip such intentions in the bud."

Another opined the disturbance could not be of a serious nature, or they would have learned of it by wireless or radio at once.

A third man called their attention to the fact that the equinoctial storm, the worst in years, might have something to do with their not receiving either wireless or radio message up to date.

All concluded they could but wait and wait patiently.

Jil-Bett was on the point of leaving the deck when Jack put in an appearance. Just as he was about to speak, she held up one warning finger. "Do not attempt any excuses; I know you forgot your promise to me to return shortly; is it not so?" "You are right," he returned frankly. "I became so engrossed in a story one of the sailors was telling that I did not notice the time; please pardon me. You, and no one else here, know how treacherous my memory is. I am here to urge you to go to rest—the contents of the box can wait for our inspection until tomorrow."

Jil-Bett shook her head. "As well now as any other time, Jack."

"As you will," he returned, taking a seat by her side.

"It is going to be a difficult task

THE GUMPS—A FOOL AND HIS HONEY to open it," she observed.

"For your little hands, yes; for me, no," he responded, taking it from her.

Again he remarked how heavy it was for so small a box.

It was fastened by a lead staple, wedged in. It took Jack some time to work it out, even with the aid of a quill he picked up on deck.

As the lid was flung back, Jil-Bett saw by the white, bright light of the moon it contained exactly what she had suspected. The gold that had meant so much to her poor old grandfather.

She sobbed aloud, burying her face on Jack's shoulder.

"Gold!" he exclaimed, "and much of it! Why, Jil-Bett, this certainly represents the saving of a lifetime."

Her heart was too full to tell him all just at that moment.

"Oh, Jack!" she cried, laying her head on his shoulder, "don't you see that it proves that the Arab, Ben-Ali, was the thief?"

Jack patted her trembling hands held out to him so gladly.

"I am glad that it removes any taint of suspicion from me; that is, if that gentle breast of yours ever harbored any."

"My faith in you never wavered for a single instant, Jack. I felt that something would surely happen to vindicate you." She went on: "That large sum of money was an advance payment on a very delicate piece of work that was entrusted to my grandfather to do. He sat up all night to complete it; and as the night was oppressively warm, he opened the window for a breath of air. That was his undoing, for—when he must have had his back turned for a moment—it was stolen, together with the gold. Both had been lying on his workbench.

"You know what the loss did to my grandfather—it drove him mad. It meant the snatching away of a fortune when it was within his grasp. It meant awakening from a dream of luxury for his old age to the awful realization he must still toil, struggle with poverty and dice privation until death released him. You cannot blame him that he went mad with the torture of it."

"You, Jack, passed the door and open window just as he looked out. Do not be hard on the dear old man for jumping at conclusions. Do try to find it in your heart to forgive him. If he is looking down from those stars at this moment above us, he sees, and rejoices with me in the establishment of your innocence, Jack."

He looked at her gravely, making no comment, and she went on eagerly: "You shall tell me what disposition I shall make of this gold; as grandfather did not complete the work he contracted to do, I cannot feel that he was entitled to it, nor am I as his next of kin."

"We just passed the agent who was to come for the finished work on the steamer that recently passed us. I wish we had remained in Katar until we could have seen him."

"Then we would have missed this boat, Jil-Bett."

"That would not have mattered, we could have taken some other one, as long as it makes no difference to us in which direction it goes. But about the gold: do you not agree with me that it is not rightfully mine and thine?"

"You are right, Jil-Bett; it belongs to the owner who has sent this agent out on this mission. We will use every endeavor to locate and restore the gold to him."

"How noble you are, Jack," she sobbed, catching his hand and clinging to it. "I was desperately afraid that you might—"

"That I might, after all, prove that I had a dishonest heart, by advising you to keep it—owing to the fact that we are so poor, scarcely knowing where our next meal is to come from after we land."

"I wonder if there are any pearl fisheries around New York?" queried Jil-Bett, eagerly.

Jack shook his head, replying he did not know, but if there were he would work and she should stay at home and cook.

"How good and thoughtful of me you are going to be, Jack," she whispered.

Three Slayers Confess Killing Of Five People

Father and Two Youths Plan and Execute Slaughter of Family.

Idabel, Okla., May 4.—(By The Associated Press.)—The mystery surrounding the brutal killing of five members of the family of T. H. Hanks, a farmer, near Harwarth, on the night of April 26, was cleared here today when the three slayers made a clean breast of the affair. The killings were planned and executed by John W. Pope, estranged husband of Hanks' daughter, Lydia. He was aided by his 19-year-old son, John, of a former marriage, and "Red" Harvey, a 21-year-old youth.

Young Pope and Harvey pleaded guilty to charges of murder. They will be sentenced later in district court. The elder Pope, who is about 41 years old, calmly admitted in justice court at his preliminary hearing on a charge of murder that he killed his wife. He was bound over to the district court without bond and is expected to plead guilty.

Young Pope and Harvey told of their part in the slaying on the stand as witnesses against the elder Pope. Principal witness.

Young Pope, who has been held in the county jail here since Monday, was the principal witness at his father's hearing. He testified his father and Harvey planned the killing of Mrs. Pope several days before it was carried out. His father, he declared, told him he had promised "Red" Harvey $500 to kill Mrs. Pope.

The witness related he and Harvey had crossed the Red river from Texas in a small boat, how Harvey stole a horse to ride out to the Hanks home, and how his father swam his horse across the swollen river to meet them and arrange the details.

His father gave Harvey a shotgun and a pistol and told Harvey to go to the Hanks home and kill them. Harvey left him he heard shooting and screams, he said. His father and Harvey fled.

Hid in Woods.
From Thursday night until Sunday night he said he hid in the woods without any food. Then Sunday night he made his way back across the Red river and went to the home of his grandfather, who told him that his father and Harvey already had been arrested, and advised that he give up and tell the whole truth.

The youth surrendered the next day. His testimony corroborated that of young Pope except that he testified it was he who held the horses at the Hanks home and that the Pones did the killing.

The elder Pope was sworn and admitted he was guilty of shooting his wife. He denied, however, that he was guilty of slaying the other members of the family. Those killed at the Hanks home were Hanks, his wife, a seven-year-old son, Mrs. Pope and her infant daughter.

Marietta Man, Shot By His Son-in-Law, Expected to Recover

Marietta, May 4.—(Special.)—Lon Brooks, who was shot and seriously injured by his son-in-law, Jack Brooks, a few days ago, is out of danger, according to attending physicians, and his early recovery is expected. He formerly was employed by the Black Builders' Supply company.

Jack Brooks, who was arrested shortly after the shooting, is out on bond awaiting trial. E. Herbert Clay, prominent Marietta attorney, has been retained to defend young Brooks in his trial on a charge of assault with intent to murder.

STAGE ONE-DAY FAIR IN CLASSIC CITY TODAY

Athens, Ga., May 4.—(Special.)—A fair that is to last but one day will be offered northeast Georgia here Saturday when the little international horse show is staged at the Georgia State College of Agriculture. The show is put on by the Saddle and Sirolo club of the institution and is an annual event.

Among the special features of the show directed and staged altogether by the students are a monkey drill, piram building and saddle drill acts by girls and boys' riding classes and exhibitions of stock groomed to the N. degree.

ATHENS CURB MARKET TO BE OPENED TODAY

Athens, Ga., May 4.—(Special.)—The new curb market in Athens is to be opened here Saturday morning at 7:30 o'clock, and with the opening of this new market women housekeepers will see in operation an enterprise that they have been struggling for several years to obtain.

The market is to be located on Broad street and Mrs. Anne Mae Bryant, county demonstration agent, and J. W. Firoe, county agent, are to supervise it. All the civic organizations of Athens and many organizations throughout Clarke county have endorsed the market.

HANCOCK ELECTION OF COMMISSIONERS LEGAL, SAYS COURT

In a decision handed down Friday on an appeal case from Hancock county, the state supreme court held that the state legislature has the right to provide two-year terms for commissioners of roads and revenue in some counties and four-year terms in others.

The decision affirms a ruling by the Hancock superior court which had held that a recent election in Hancock county of three new commissioners was valid. The old commissioners had refused to surrender their offices on the grounds that they were elected for a four-year period instead of two years.

Impetus Is Given Move for Greater Columbus in 1928

Leaders of State Politics Are Guests of Columbus at Civic Banquet.

Columbus, Ga., May 4.—(Special.)—At a big civic banquet tonight attended by more than 200 men, including Senators William J. Harris and Walter E. Georgia, Representative William C. Wright and Governor-elect Clifford Walker, impetus was given the campaign for a greater Columbus of 100,000 in 1928, when a centennial of the city is to be celebrated here.

The distinguished visitors pledged their aid in obtaining for Columbus the many projects sought. In the program outlined by President Homer R. McClatchey, of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, who presided, a federal building is sought. The three members of the national board of the National Civic League, who are aiding in the securing of the building.

Other projects visualized by President McClatchey are: Tourist hotel, new city hall, new city hall, new paved roads to Fort Benning, new river dam, two boats a week on the Chattahoochee to the Gulf, an auditorium.

Harris Pledges Aid.
In connection with the development of the river, the paving of the roads and the construction of a federal building, Senator Harris made known in a short address his intention to lend his aid.

Senator Wright, stating that agriculture in sections of the state has not advanced in the past few years a state of almost peasantry, urged the co-ordinate development of industry in Georgia along with the development of agriculture.

"It is most promising," the senator said, "that the commercial bodies have lent their aid to the solution of the farmers' problem." A note of criticism was sounded by the senator, who said that the farmer and the city man have awakened to the realization that prosperity depends upon the individual exertion of the individual man. He said that the farmers are responding to the aid of the commercial body.

Governor-elect Walker, speaking for the most part of the great opportunity before the state of Georgia in bringing industries here, stated that the first class to be crossed is the matter of tax reform. He emphasized the importance of providing that intangible and property bear a fair proportion of the burden of taxation. He asked the co-operation of the business men in writing a fair tax law.

Representative Wright pledged his co-operation in aiding Columbus in her greater Columbus campaign. Several other speakers were on the program, the meeting continuing until midnight.

Brigadier General Walter H. Gordon, commandant of the United States infantry school, Fort Benning, was host at a luncheon in the afternoon, after which the distinguished visitors with several leading citizens, including Mayor J. Homer Dimon, witnessed a new firing demonstration by a battalion of infantry in defense formation.

The leading figures in Georgia affairs are the guests of the county during their stay in Columbus.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. DUPRE HELD

Douglasville, Ga., May 4.—(Special.)—Funeral services for Mrs. T. F. Dupre, who died at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hutcheson, were held here Friday from the residence of Colonel J. R. Hutcheson. Interment was at the private family cemetery on the old homestead near Campbellton.

Mrs. Dupre was born of one of the prominent families in Georgia. She was first married to Dr. J. E. Henley, who died 30 years ago. She later married Dr. J. R. Hutcheson, who died several years ago. Mrs. Dupre leaves a number of children and grandchildren to survive her, among them being Dr. J. T. Henley, College Park; Mrs. J. J. Hutcheson, J. E. Henley, Mrs. H. A. Bonar, J. R. Henley, all of Douglasville; Mrs. J. W. Whitely, Hooey Grove, Texas, and Mrs. C. B. Campbell, of Ben Hill, Ga.; also Mrs. R. L. Henley, widow of R. L. Henley deceased.

Mrs. Dupre was the only daughter of the late Thomas Bullard, a well-known citizen of the old south, and a prominent public official in this county when Douglas and Campbell were one county.

ENFORCE NEW PARKING LAWS IN CEDARTOWN

Cedartown, Ga., May 4.—(Special.)—The downtown section of Cedartown was very deserted this morning as far as automobiles go. The city council passed a 15-minute parking ordinance on Main street between Woodland and Stubb streets. However, this law probably will be replaced, as every merchant in that area has signed a petition for the repeal.

The traffic problem here is becoming acute on Main street; however, it is generally believed fifteen minutes is not enough time allowance.

Discuss Cheese Plant.

Cedartown, Ga., May 4.—(Special.)—At a meeting of the farm bureau here May 10 the location of a cheese factory in Cedartown will be discussed.

Bank Officers Elected.

Hartwell, Ga., May 4.—New officers for the Hartwell bank were elected by the board of directors, R. C. Thornton, cashier, being promoted to vice president, and Fred S. White, assistant cashier, was made cashier. Other officers elected were D. C. Alford, president; M. N. Norman, vice president; D. C. Alford, M. N. Norman, R. E. Matheson, L. M. Mullen, W. L. Halley, I. J. Phillips and J. W. Williams.

Harding Claims Aloof Position Is Not Tenable

Firmly Convinced No President Could Leave White House Unscathed.

Washington, May 4.—President Harding is firmly convinced no president could leave the white house with the belief that the United States can or should remain aloof from the rest of the world, it was stated at the executive mansion today. But it was reiterated that he is unwilling to make a personal issue of the world court.

The president was represented as holding that with phases of international relations arising every day there is no escape from interconnection with the rest of the world. The president, it was added, would not choose to escape the responsibility Americans owe to other nations of the world if he could. It was made plain that his connection that the statement of the president's views should not be taken as an argument for American entrance into the league of nations.

As for the world court issue the president was described as feeling that it would not be comfortable with presidential dignity to conduct from the white house a campaign designed to stir up sentiment in behalf of the proposal. Mr. Harding feels, it was added, that inasmuch as the senate does not meet until December, there is plenty of time for a discussion of the matter and numerous opportunities during the executive's proposed western trip for presentation of the proposal to the people in an explanatory way.

The president was said to be that there is no need for elucidation of his position as enunciated in his recent New York address. The statement being made that Mr. Harding regards that address as having made his attitude as clear as possible.

HEAVY RAINSTORM FLOODS STREETS, HOMES IN ALBANY

Albany, Ga., May 4.—Albany was visited by the heaviest rainstorm in seventeen years last night, when the precipitation totaled 4.40 inches in about seven hours. The rain was accompanied by wind, lightning and hail. The big shelling and peanu plant of the Bain Peanut company was struck by lightning, the bolt striking the main building and jumping to a smaller building used for storing hulls.

The fire department extinguished the fire caused by the bolt before great damage could result. Low places in the city were flooded, many negro families being compelled to move out of their homes. Many automobiles were stalled engine deep on the streets. It was the greatest rainfall since July, 1916, when ten inches fell in eighteen hours.

Presiding Judge, Lawyer and Witness Dead, But Case Tried

Augusta, Ga., May 4.—The case of Stevens vs. Stevens, with perjury, appears on the United States district court calendar this week. The peculiar state of this case is that the judge who presided over the original hearing, the defendant, the defendant and star witness are all dead and the prosecuting attorney has retired from government service.

Fallow was indicted by the federal grand jury in April, 1922, following his original trial on a charge of violating the national prohibition law. The case will come to trial, court officials declared, the absence of the important characters notwithstanding.

BUTLER BOY DIES UNDER TRUCK WHEEL

Butler, Ga., May 4.—(Special.)—Alvin, the 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lowe, was instantly killed about 6 o'clock Thursday afternoon when he was run over and his skull crushed beneath the wheels of a lumber truck. No blame is attached to the driver, John Cook Lowe, an older brother, with whom the child was riding and jostled off the truck when it passed over an obstacle in the road.

Interment will take place today at Roberta, Ga., former home of the family.

LIGHTNING FIRES BARN NEAR BUTLER

Butler, Ga., May 4.—(Special.)—A large barn near the home of Mr. E. P. Winn, near here, was burned about 9 o'clock Thursday night when struck by lightning. Besides the barn, the loss includes 125 bushels of corn, a ton of nitrate of soda, a large amount of guano, several heads of hogs, buggy, wagon and all of the farming tools of the plantation, all being the property of the lessee, W. A. Child.

The family residence narrowly escaped being destroyed also. No insurance was carried on any of the property burned.

EMORY DEBATORS WIN OVER TEAM FROM MISSISSIPPI

Emory university debaters Friday night defeated the University of Mississippi debating team. The question argued was: "Resolved, That Organized Labor Should Enter politics as a Separate Party." The Emory team, composed of Leroy Mandle and A. R. Davidson, had the negative side, the Mississippi debaters were E. W. Lyons and W. C. Newman. The victory Friday was the third straight for Emory this season.

The judges were Professor C. W. Noel, of Georgia Tech, and Drs. McKain and Rankin, of Agnes Scott college. The next debate scheduled for Emory is with Trinity college in North Carolina on May 11. The team that will go there is composed of C. F. Mullinax, E. W. Wise and J. A. Dombrosky.

Lieutenant Ryan's Condition "Fair" Following Operation

Following the amputation of Lieutenant Ed P. Ryan's leg on Thursday, physicians at the Davis-Fischer sanitarium Friday stated that his condition was "fair." The amputation of the leg was necessitated by blood poisoning, caused from an injury to his foot several years ago in an automobile accident. The accident occurred while he was on duty.

Lieutenant Ryan was connected with the Oakland City police department at the time that town was merged with Atlanta, and became a member of the Atlanta police department on January 1, 1910. He is one of the most popular members of the police force.

He has had trouble with his foot since the accident, and in February it became so acute that he was placed on sick leave, and was confined to his bed until a few weeks ago, when he was taken to the hospital for the operation.

County Furnishes Fund to Excavate High School Site

Commissioners Approprate
$15,000 to Defray the Cost of Work.

In order to enable the city board of education to proceed with plans for the new Girls' High school at the stockade property on Rosalia street, the board of county commissioners Friday afternoon appropriated $15,000 to defray the cost of excavating the site.

Bids on the excavation will be asked in advertisements to be placed Saturday by the board of education. It has been estimated that the cost of the undertaking will be approximately $15,000.

Architects' plans for the school will be completed by June, according to W. L. McCalley, Jr., chairman of the finance and building committee of the board of education, and bids for the construction work on the plant will be invited shortly thereafter, he said. Members of city council, of the city board of education and representatives of the Parent-Teacher association of Girls' High school asked the county to undertake the grading on the location of the new senior high school for girls, but a shortage of convict labor makes such a task impossible at this time, members of the board said.

School Commissioner McCalley expressed thanks to the county on behalf of the city board of education for the action of the board.
